Action of Congress on the Appropriation Bills.

Report of the Sumner Investigating Committee.

Failure to Recognize the Liberals in Mexico—The Supposed Failure of the Clay-Trimble Treaty.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Monday, Feb. 28.

The Cabinet had another meeting to-day for the discussion of Mexican affairs. It was mainly occupied by Gideon with nothing. It is quite evident that the President is too fearful of another defeat in recognizing the Liberal Government immediately, as he designed to do in a Message, and not on appropriation to carry it into effect before adjournment. Still, the Presidency believes that he will recognize the Liberal Government upon the receipt of the details of the Tennessee's report, if it shall justify such action. There is some reason to suppose that he hesitates in part because of the difficulty to be decided as to who shall be the new Minister to Mexico. Well-defined rumors to-day are, that either BUCHANAN will go to Mexico soon, or the author of the ill-fated Treaties bill will replace CASS in the State Department.

Mr. BUCHANAN is deeply mortified at the failure of the Clay-Trimble Treaty, upon the success of which he had staked his entire Central American policy. The evidence that he has been completely bamboozled by OSBORN and family is overwhelming. The Government has not received a line from Nicaragua explanatory of the failure to ratify the Treaty. Gen. JUNTA is here without dispatches on that or any other subject. The British messenger has arrived with dispatches to the Legation, bearing the news of the prohibition of the Clayton Treaty, but not a word about the other. JUNTA is also much mortified, and declares that the American Government has just cause to complain of rude treatment. He now approaches the crisis.

It is possible that Congress will grant the President authority to use force to protect American interests in Central America. The Cabinet will hold a special meeting on the subject to-morrow.

Report that Sumner was very somewhat insane.]

WASHINGTON, Monday, Feb. 28.

The Select Committee appointed at the last session to examine the conduct and character of Charles Sumner, the former Clerk of the House, report him of any corruption or dishonesty in the discharge of his duties. They have reported the facts connected with every charge, which on investigation was found worth attention. In some cases the Committee thought that more care might have been exercised, but this amounted to no more than a failure to correct predisposing abuses.

Much interest is manifested with regard to the organization of the next House in view of the present probability of an extra session. Several gentlemen of the Opposition are spoken of for the various offices, and prominent among them EDWARD BALL, an ex-member from Ohio, who, now here, is named for Clerk.

The Naval bill which passed the House to-day, proposed, as it was originally reported, to appropriate about ten and a half million dollars, but it was cut down to the extent of two and a quarter millions. It appropriated $874,000 for the completing of the seven steam sloops-of-war and sidewheel steamers, heretofore authorized.

XXXVth CONGRESS—Second Session

SENATE.....WASHINGTON, Monday, Feb. 28.

Mr. YULEE, of Florida, from the Post-Office Committee, reported adversely to a large number of memorials asking for post routes.

Mr. PUGH, of Ohio, moved to take up the Homestead bill, but the Senate refused; 26 against 28.

NAYS—Messrs. Allen, Bayard, Biggs, Bigler, Bright, Brown, Chesnut, Clay, Clingman, Davis, Fitch, Fitzpatrick, Green, Hunter, Iverson, Johnson of Ark., Mason, Pearce, Polk, Reid, Sebastian, Thomson of N. J., Toombs, Ward, Wright, Yulee—26.

Committees of Conference were appointed to meet the House on the Legislative, and Executive, and Consular, and Diplomatic Appropriation bills.

Mr. HOUSTON then took the floor to make a farewell address. He said he had been forty-six years in public life, and would leave it to posterity to determine how he had spent his time, and he was content to stand on the foundation it might place him. He embraced the occasion to repeat the calumnies by which he had been assailed. Some of them had been recently circulated by persons animated by the deepest malignity towards him. He especially cited the compilers of the Times Almanac just laid on his desk, and was very severe on the Rev. Dr. Jas. H. PERRY, of New-York, who had recently lectured on San Jacinto. That patriot joined the Texans from patriotism, connected with an attempt to sell a free yellow girl in New-Orleans. Mr. HOUSTON had placed him on his staff, yet he had been for the past twelve years sedulously engaged in defaming his character. Had it not been for his (HOUSTON'S) clemency, he (PERRY) would have been executed in Texas for holding communication with the enemy. Mr. HOUSTON then reviewed at considerable length his own military career, to defend it from the misrepresentations which his enemies had recently revived and disseminated. Mr. HOUSTON concluded by saying that this was the time he (HOUSTON) would be heard in this Chamber. With the exception of those who had uncourteously assaulted the speaker, he had ever attempted to cultivate friendly feelings. He knew their great abilities, and that they will exert them to give strength and stability to the Union. His prayers will be that their labors may be crowned with patriotism, and that under their influence and exertions peace and prosperity may be secured to the latest posterity.

On motion of Mr. SUMNER, the Post Office Appropriation bill was taken up. The first section of the bill appropriates for the transportation of the inland mails, $12,000,000; for compensation to postmasters, $3,375,000; for compensation to clerks, $900,000; for city delivery, $1,000,000; for letters, $225,000; for advertising, $70,000; for mail bags, $40,000; for blank books, $50,000; for wrapping paper, $35,000; for mail locks, keys, mats and furniture, $15,000; for mail depredations and mail robbery, $75,000; for miscellaneous payments, $300,000; for postage-stamps and stamped envelopes, $100,000; for a new edition of the Post-Office laws and regulations, $15,000.

Section 2 provides for the deficiencies of revenue in the Post-Office Department for the year ending June 30, 1859, by appropriating for the same $8,020,000.

Section 3 enacts that if the Post-Office revenue shall be insufficient to defray the appropriations of Section 1, the deficiency at the expiration of each quarter of the fiscal year shall be paid from the Treasury.

The total amount appropriated is $19,990,000.

After much amendment, the bill passed without division, and in lieu thereof was inserted a section, providing that the sum of six millions of dollars be appropriated from the Treasury to meet the deficiency of the fiscal year commencing July 1, 1859, but that the Postmaster shall in no event expend or incur any liabilities in excess of the appropriations for the current fiscal year ending June 30.

Short but warm was spent in the discussion of the bill and amendments.

The debate was interesting, and much confusion prevailed throughout the proceedings.

An additional section, reported by the Committee, was adopted, providing that the Postmaster-General report of the commencement of the next session, what mail routes have not paid one-half their cost; also, what he expects on what terms of the Department, generally, the service may be reduced.

The amendment offered by Mr. BUCHANAN was adopted, providing for the salary of the California Mail Agent from $2,000 to $1,400.

Mr. WIGFALL succeeded by cutting down most of the miscellaneous items, as advertising, mail-bags, wrapping paper and post-office blanks, making a total saving of $1,000.

In reference to the blanks, he said he was cognizant of a case where Mr. RUSH, Editor of the Pennsylvanian, had a contract for printing blanks for $40,000, which cost him just $8,000—the profit being divided, three cents to the Washington Union, five per cent. to Mr. Appleton, Secretary of State, and three per cent. to a paper published in the interest of a Member of Congress.

Mr. MASON said if the facts were so, it is due to the Senate and to the country for the Senator to lay his information before them.

Mr. WIGFALL reiterated the statement, and said that Mr. RUSH himself had said so, and moreover, that the arrangement was with the cognizance of the President of the United States.

Mr. CAMERON said the matter was so notorious that everybody, except perhaps the Senator from Virginia, knew all about it. Mr. RUSH was, until recently, a partisan of the President's, but recently they had a quarrel, and he went about blabbing all about it.

Mr. MASON—Did Mr. RUSH tell the Senator so?

Mr. CAMERON—The way to get this information is to appoint a Committee of Investigation, or else use for evidence, and that will bring the evidence. I am responsible for all I say here or elsewhere. Just bring here Mr. RUSH and the President. They know all about it, and I think my colleague knows something about it.

Mr. MASON—Did Mr. RUSH tell you so?

Mr. CAMERON—I do not speak to Mr. RUSH.

Mr. MASON—Then you bring here the rumor and hearsay of the country to make these grave charges against

Mr. BUCHANAN said that whatever extravagance there might be in the printing of these blanks, he could say that the whole was executed in accordance with law, and the prices were fixed by law.

Mr. SUMNER then explained the details of the affair, and added that his colleague was scarcely justified in these imputations on the President.

Mr. JOHNSON, of Arkansas, while considering the prices for printing these blanks too high, he could not believe the imputation cast by the Senator from Pennsylvania on the President. He did no doubt that the Senator himself believed it, but he (JOHNSON) could not give it credence.

Mr. CAMERON said to show his sincerity he would move for a Committee of Enquiry.

Mr. WILSON's amendment was then adopted.

Mr. IVERSON proposed to add a clause to the bill reducing the rate of postage from three to five cents, for the reason, as he stated, that that the Post Bill, to which was added a similar provision, is an unimportant bill, which the House, if adverse to raising the rate, would let fall to the ground, whereas they could not throw over this appropriation.

Lost, Yeas, 19; Nays, 27.

At 12½ o'clock, on motion of Mr. GWIN, the Senate adjourned, by Yeas, 23; Nays, 17.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WASHINGTON, Monday, Feb. 28.

Mr. REAGAN, of Texas, made a personal explanation relative to a dialogue between himself and Mr. BOYKIN, his colleague, involving a question of veracity. After the colloquy had been continued some time this morning, Mr. REAGAN asked whether Mr. BOYKIN intended to impute dishonorable motives to him. If so, then they would know where they stand.

Mr. BOYKIN, in reply, said, among other things, if his colleague was aggrieved, he knew where he could right the wrong. He should not shelter himself under any constitutional privilege of his State. He was responsible here and elsewhere for what he said.

Mr. REAGAN charged his colleague with having sought to place him in the light of not being a good Southern man, but he (REAGAN) had always professed to be a national man, repudiating all sectional heresies and fanaticism, whether coming from the North or South. He would ever resist all violations of the master's statute law to build up political or sectional parties. He had once gone through the ordeal, and was ready again to meet the people of Texas on this issue.

There was much excitement prevailing during this colloquy.

The House took up the Naval Appropriation bill, and concurred in Mr. SUMNER's amendment, reducing the appropriation for repairs, armament, equipment, fuel and hemp, from $5,100,000 to $1,200,000, by 122 against 64.

The amendment reducing the appropriations of $1,122,000 for the ten Navy-yards to only $120,000, was concurred in by 89 majority.

The bill was then passed.

Mr. PHELPS, of Missouri, from the Committee on Ways and Means, asked leave to report a bill to revive for two years the act authorizing the Treasury notes.

Objections were made, when Mr. PHELPS moved a suspension of the rules.

Not carried, 83 against 108.

Mr. PHELPS moved to go into Committee of the Whole on the Miscellaneous Appropriation bill.

Mr. COVODE, of Pennsylvania, inquired whether it would be in order to offer a tariff bill as an amendment to that bill.

The Speaker replied that the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole on the State of the Union would have to determine that question, as it would come before him.

Mr. PHELPS' motion was agreed to.

Mr. WASHBURNE, of Wisconsin, moved to strike out the item of $250,000 for continuing the survey of the Atlantic and Gulf coast, which motion, after debate was rejected.

Mr. REILLY offered an amendment, which was ruled out of order, reviving the Tariff act of 1846.

At twenty minutes past 11 the Committee rose and reported the bill with amendments, to the House.

Mr. GEO. TAYLOR, from the Committee appointed to investigate the accounts of the Superintendent of Public Printing, made a report. The Committee say that the books are so negligently and loosely kept that it is impossible to arrive at any definite knowledge of the business done in the office. The accounts in some instances appear balanced when such is not the case. Considerable sums have been collected on the same under the direction of the present Superintendent. The certificates issued for engraving and lithographing do not agree with the amounts kept by the parties who did the work. They exhibited their books and swore that they had been paid for all the work done. Their books show the amount received by them, yet it appears that certificates were issued to several parties for greater amounts than appear in the books. In one case there was a difference of $10,000, and another of over $8,000, the difference being against the Government. The paper accounts do not agree. Several hundred reams are unaccounted for. The Committee say, in fact, there appears to have been a singular fatality about the books. The accounts connected with these matters, but few of them, could be explained, and none entirely satisfactory. They unanimously report that the facts show conclusively there existed a combination for the purpose of compelling all the contractors to pay in some way for their contracts; that this was the general belief among the contractors, and the payment for the contracts either in the way of loan, commission or per centage was as general as the belief. The contractors found it necessary to employ certain agents in Washington to attend to their business, and had to pay them largely before they got work. As a general thing they say they did not know that Mr. SCHAAR was interested in the matter, but but that they got no work until after they employed particular parties. The contractors were all led or forced to employ the same agents, although they had no previous acquaintance with them. The paper contractors employed the public printer to act as their agent, for which they paid him about three and a half per cent. The printer employed a clerk to do his little work at a yearly salary of $1,000, while the printer received for doing nothing from $6,000 to $10,000 per annum. The engravers and lithographers found it to their interest to employ the Public Printer to act as agent to look after their interests, and receive the money to be paid. The Committee report they traced between $25,000 and $45,000 into his hands; some $10,000 into the hands of others, and about $20,000 direct to SCHAAR, which last sum was given by way of loans, still remaining unpaid, a small portion now paid by the contractors direct as per centage. The Committee found two or three agreements to pay money direct for contracts, two in favor of Mr. SCHAAR, and one in favor of the printer, but found the use including the largest sum broken by reason of the refusal of one of the paper contractors. In the second case, the money was paid not to the printer, but to other parties not known to the witness. As to the third contract for twenty per centum on account of lithographing, the Committee could not ascertain whether it was paid or not. The combination referred to existed for all contracts being through SCHAAR's office. The Committee say that "the testimony in the case forces them to the conclusion that some intimate and confidential relation existed between Mr. SCHAAR and the principal parties involved, and that they were not ignorant of the acts and interests of each other." From the facts found, the Committee feel constrained to submit the following resolution for the consideration of the House:

Resolved, That A. G. SCHAAR, late Superintendent of Public Printing, has been guilty of improper and illegal practices in the discharge of his official duty, and in violation of the provisions of the act approved on the 26th day of August, 1852, creating the office of Superintendent and defining the duties thereof.

Resolved, That the testimony in this case be certified to by the Clerk of the House of Representatives and sent to the District Attorney for the District of Columbia.

Our files of Rio papers extend to Jan. 13—five days later.

The Jornal do Commercio says, that on January 2, a definitive treaty between Brazil, the Oriental Republic, and the Argentine Confederation—which the three contracting powers bound themselves to make in the preliminary Convention of August 27, 1858—was signed at Rio de Janeiro. The Plenipotentiaries were Sr. PARANHOS and the Visconte DE URUGUAY on the part of Brazil; Don LUIS J. DE LA PEZA on the part of the Argentine Confederation, and Don ANDRES LEZES on the part of the Oriental Republic of Uruguay. The provisions of this important document have not yet transpired, but it is supposed to guarantee the integrity of the Argentine territory, and consequently to contemplate the restoration of Buenos Ayres to the Confederation, if necessary, by force of arms. As soon as the treaty was signed Sr. PEZA left for Parana on board of the Brazilian war steamer Paraense, which was placed at his disposition by the Imperial Government.

The subject of placing a new line of steamers upon the Amazon, connecting the frontiers of Peru with Para, was receiving attention. The newspapers of the Amazon region, supported by those at the Capital, were urging the measure upon the notice of Government, with strong probabilities of obtaining a sufficient subsidy.

On the 10th of January Señor BONAMOUR, a well-know merchant of great wealth, but retired from business, was murdered by a favorite slave, who immediately after committed suicide.

The Coffee market on the 12th of January was quiet, the sales trifling. The shipments for the month, up to that day, amounted to 327,422 bags.

Later from Hayti.

SEQUESTRATION OF PROPERTY OF SOULOUQUE'S MINISTERS—GEFFRARD STILL POPULAR—COMPLIMENT TO THE FRENCH CONSUL—THE ORIGIN OF THE REVOLUTION.

By the brig S. Boutier, at Boston, we have received Hayti advices to Feb. 4, with over a week's later intelligence.

President GEFFRARD has issued a decree, confiscating the effects of D'ELVA, a minister of the late Empire, and Soulouque's most influential adviser.

M. MELLIZOND, the French Consul-General, is largely praised by the Press for his course during the late struggle, and a movement was on foot to strike a medal in his honor. M. MELLIZOND has, however, declined this high compliment.

The Central Committee of Gonaives has proposed a report showing forth the causes which led to the revolution. It appears that last December, eight men, of whom GEFFRARD was the most prominent, signed a document, and took the name of the Committee of the Department (Comité Departemental,) swearing to die or release their country from the tyrant SOULOUQUE's power. In three days, Gonaives and the surrounding country gave in their adhesion to the revolutionary scheme, and in eight days more GEFFRARD found himself at the head of ten thousand willing men.

The report proceeds to say:

"The cruel SOULOUQUE was thunderstruck. His vain pride induced him to suppose that he could conquer men who were inspired by the fire of liberty, and first pronouncing against them the anathema of proscription, he advanced against them at the head of an army that he believed to be devoted to himself and his family. Stupid monster! He had forgotten that the army of the West on which he principally relied was essentially republican, and would speedily make common cause with its brethren of the North, in reestablishing the dear Republic."

The Haytian people appear to be still enthusiastic in favor of GEFFRARD, and the Press is loud in condemnation of SOULOUQUE and his corrupt Government.

YALE COLLEGE AND THE ELLSWORTH WILL.—The Lafayette (Ind.) Journal states that the Trustees of Wabash College, at Crawfordsville, Ind., have commenced suit in Tippecanoe County to probate a will made by HENRY L. ELLSWORTH, in February, 1851, by which will Mr. E. bequeaths two-tenths of his property equally to Wabash College, Yale College, the American Bible Society and the American Colonization Society. In May, 1855, Mr. ELLSWORTH indorsed on this will of 1851, a codicil by which in terms he reiterated it, and extended its bequests to all the real and personal property of which he might die possessed. But without the codicil, it is said that under the laws of Indiana, Mr. E.'s entire estate, real and personal, would pass to the legatees under the provisions of this will. Wabash College alleges in her complaint that this will of 1851, a copy of which is produced, is now in the hands of Judge WILLIAMS, of Hartford, Conn., that it was the last will and testament of Mr. E.; that at the time the will of 1857 was made Mr. E. was of unsound mind; and that the will of 1857 was not duly executed; that Mr. E., although in Connecticut at the time of his death, was in fact domiciled in Indiana.

PUERTO RICO.—We have received by the schooner W. L. Richardson Puerto Rico journals of the 12th inst. They contain nothing new.

THE SICKLES TRAGEDY.

A Preliminary Examination Waived—Mr. Sickles Remains in Prison.

Continuation of the Excitement—State of Public Feeling.

From Our Special Washington Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Monday, Feb. 28.

The excitement relative to yesterday's tragedy has abated but little, if any.

Bail was granted to-day, upon ascertaining that the Grand Jury will meet next Monday, adjourned in order the preliminary examination and application for bail. By this procedure SICKLES remains in custody a few days longer, but avoids a premature disclosure of his defense, the testimony in which, I am free to predict, will present heart-rending facts, bearing upon the case, of which the public have little anticipation.

SICKLES has been visited to-day by numerous sympathizing friends. His mental suffering has told fearfully upon him, and while he really justifies his act of retribution, he quite broke down to-day when referring to the sad history which led to the fatal occurrence.

It was understood here to-day that BUTTERSWORTH had been arrested as accessory before the fact. The statement is erroneous. There is no good reason for supposing that he was an accessory, except so far as a charge can rest upon his failure to interpose to prevent the homicide. It cannot be made to appear that he knew SICKLES' intention, or detained KEY in consequence for the purpose of giving SICKLES an opportunity to kill him, as has been intimated. He had only just reached SICKLES' house when KEY passed, stimulating and provoking the madness which led to his instant pursuit and death. The fact is, BUTTERSWORTH had told SICKLES that in such a case as this he had no advice to give.

It is freely rumored that a brother of the deceased declares his purpose to kill SICKLES on sight. Cooler reflection, doubtless, will prevent any such attempt to add another act to the fearful tragedy.

I paid a visit to SICKLES this morning, the moment I could be admitted, and found with him the Rev. Mr. HALEY, of the Unitarian Church, who had been with him all night, and had conveyed messages to and from Mrs. SICKLES. By the persuasion of Mr. HALEY, SICKLES was prevailed upon to return the wretched woman's wedding-ring, which he had taken from her finger—of which she complained bitterly. He promised to let her keep her child upon the condition of her going home to her father's house. SICKLES wrote her a letter of four pages during the night.

While I was there several friends called upon him in the jail—among them Senator CLINGMAN, CHARLES RANDS, and Surveyor MAES, of New-York, upon seeing whom he was greatly overcome. BUTTERSWORTH was also there, and ISAAC BELL, Jr., of New-York.

SICKLES was walking in the corridor of the jail, and seemed in his usual spirits, though very serious. The sympathies of the people are in his favor, excepting the friends of KEY, who are numerous and influential, and even they admit the terrible character of the provocation.

BUTTERSWORTH looks very solemn, and there will probably be attempts, as I before intimated, to implicate him as an accessory, but he cannot be convicted excepting upon his own testimony.

LATER.—I have learned positively to-night, from unquestionable authority, that the general understanding prevailing yesterday, that BUTTERSWORTH followed KEY to detain him at SICKLES' request, is entirely erroneous.

[FROM THE REPORTER FOR THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

WASHINGTON, Monday, Feb. 28.

In the Circuit Court, this morning, Mr. CARLISLE announced the death of Mr. KEY, the late District-Attorney for the District of Columbia. While eulogizing the deceased as a courteous, frank, openhearted gentleman, he forebore to speak of the cause which led to his death, as that was a subject for judicial investigation. The Court paid a similar compliment, and as a token of respect to the deceased adjourned till Thursday.

The examination, concerning the killing of Mr. KEY, did not take place to-day, as was anticipated. Mr. SICKLES has retained as counsel, Mr. STANTON, of Pittsburg; Mr. CHILTON, Mr. EDWARDS, and report says others, including DAVID PAUL BROWN. Mr. SICKLES has consented, that for the present Mrs. SICKLES and their child shall remain with her mother, who has been telegraphed, and is expected to arrive here to-night. The Jail was to-day visited by many of Mr. SICKLES' friends. Numerous rumors are afloat concerning all the parties, having the effect to aggravate the facts already painfully distressing, and many of the reports are pure fiction.

The News of the Homicide in Albany.

ALBANY, Monday, Feb. 28.

The intelligence of the Sickles affair created great excitement in this city and great regret is expressed in regard to it.

Board of Supervisors.

APPROPRIATIONS FOR COUNTS AND COUNTY OFFICES.

The Board of Supervisors yesterday adopted the report of the Committee on County Offices in favor of paying Winham and Feinbach $100 for plans for extending the Hall of Records. The Special Committee, appointed for the purpose, reported the estimates of appropriations for the support of the Courts and County offices for 1860. Among the items are the following: County contingencies, $50,000; Coroner's fees, $22,000; Election expenses, $28,000; Officers fees, $25,000; Commissioners of Taxes and Assessments, Deputies and Clerks' salaries, $55,000; Supreme Court (salaries), $26,100; Superior Court (salaries), $42,000; Court of Common Pleas (salaries), $25,000; Marine Court (salaries), $25,000; Court of Sessions (salaries), $32,600; Police Courts, $41,225 25; County Offices, $27,250; Police salaries, $1,226,265; Police arrears, $138,736 56; Society for the Reformation of Juvenile Delinquents, $6,000. The Committee also reported an Act to be sent to the Legislature authorizing the raising by tax, for County expenses, of a sum not exceeding $1,969,916 05, to be subject to appropriation and disbursement by the Board of Supervisors. The report was adopted and it was directed that a copy of the Act be transmitted to the Legislature.

Mr. KEMPNER moved that the resolution requesting the Comptroller to give such directions to the Receiver of Taxes as will check the mutilation of the tax lists by the Common Council after they have been approved by the Board of Supervisors be passed, notwithstanding the veto of the Mayor.

After some debate the subject was laid on the table.

A resolution was adopted directing the Recorder and City Judge to report to the Board at its next meeting the names of all the attendants of their Courts, appointed by them under the resolution of the Board authorizing their appointment and the nature of their duties.

The Board adjourned to Monday next.

Extension of the Central Park.

The following remonstrance against the proposed extension of the northern boundary of the Central Park, has been sent to the Legislature:

The undersigned, citizens of the City of New-York, most respectfully remonstrate against the passage of the Act entitled "An Act to alter the Map of the City of New-York, by laying out thereon a public Park, and to authorize the taking of the same," and ask that the same may not become a law.

Assessments and taxes in New-York have become so enormous in amount as to seriously and very injuriously affect the value of property, and threaten to mar the prosperity and future welfare of the City.

Your petitioners, therefore, most respectfully ask your Honorable Body to dismiss the Bill in question.

And your petitioners, &c.,

A. Vanderpool,	J. Lemoux,
James Brown,	Caleb O. Halsted,
William H. Macy,	Henry Grinnell,
Jno. Baird Wolfe,	Jac. H. Tallman,
Jos. Tucker,	Wm. E. Dodge,
Phelps, Dodge & Co.,	James Stokes.

New-York, Feb. 19, 1859.

On the Mississippi River, a few days ago, Captain Sturgeon, of the steamer Diana, was shot by a man named Walker, who was in a skiff floating astern of the steamer, and wounded in the neck. The Captain was on deck at the time, and had just given orders to have the skiff, which Walker had fastened to the steamer, cut loose.

POSTSCRIPT.

FOUR O'CLOCK A. M.

FOUR DAYS LATER FROM EUROPE

Arrival of the City of Baltimore.

The Right of Search Question in Parliament.

Subsidence of the War Panic on the Continent.

Cotton Quiet—Breadstuffs and Provisions Dull—Consols 95 3-8@95 1-2.

The screw-steamship City of Baltimore, Capt. LEACH, which sailed from Liverpool at about 10 A. M. on the morning of the 16th of February, arrived here at 1 o'clock this morning.

The steamship Europe arrived out at Liverpool at 5:30 P. M. on the 14th.

The Cunard screw-steamship Jura, which was to have sailed from Liverpool on the 16th of February, then temporarily with the Canada, only proceeded a short distance from the Mersey when she came to another, owing to the hazy state of the weather. As she was lying in the Stream on the night of the 12th, she was run into by the steamer Windsor, from Dublin, and had her bowsprit, figure-head and cut water carried away, rendering it necessary for her to go into dock for repairs. Her cargo was not damaged, and it was supposed she would be again ready for sea on or about the 19th of February.

GREAT BRITAIN.

In the House of Lords, on the 24th of February, the Earl of MALMESBURY, in reply to Lord WODEHOUSE, said he would lay before the House the recent correspondence with the United States Government respecting the right of search. He thought England had exercised a wise discretion in giving up that right; and he believed that a code of instructions, which had been agreed to by England and France, and had been submitted to America for approval, would be found to work satisfactorily in repressing the Slave trade.

The Earl of CLARENDON said the right of search was a belligerent right, and could not be properly exercised in time of peace. He trusted that the new code of instructions would prove satisfactory, but unless they were adopted by all the great maritime powers there would always be disputes and inconvenience.

The Earl of DERBY believed that the code of instructions which had been submitted to the United States would prevent future complications.

After a few words from the Earl of ABERDEEN, Lord BROUGHAM and the Earl of CARLISLE, the subject dropped.

On the same evening, in the House of Commons, Mr. DISRAELI gave notice that he would bring forward his Reform bill on the 28th of February.

Mr. J. FITZGERALD stated that the papers in the Charles of Georgia affair would shortly be produced. He also, in reply to an inquiry, said that under the new treaty the introduction of opium into China would not in future be illegal, but it would be subject to an import duty of 5 per cent.

Mr. DISRAELI, in reply to Lord C. PAGET, stated that Government would not grant unconditional guarantees to the Atlantic telegraph, or to any other submarine telegraph.

The mammoth steamer Great Eastern had been formally registered at the Custom-house in the name of the Great Ship Company as owners, free from incumbrances. The first step towards preparing the vessel for sea had been made by putting in the main shaft of the paddle engines by means of Rennie's derrick. The weight of the shaft is about 40 tons.

A rumor was current that the Earl of MALMESBURY had proposed the meeting of a Congress specially to arrange for the evacuation of the Roman States.

Mr. SALOMON, a Jew, and Ex-Lord Mayor of London, had been elected a member of Parliament for Greenwich.

FRANCE.

The war panic appears to have died out. The Paris correspondents of the English Press have little that is new to say upon the subject. The correspondent of La Nord says that all the efforts made by England to induce France and Austria to agree upon a common ground for negotiations on the subject of Italy, have failed.

The French budget of expenses for the present year shows an increase of 20,000,000 francs. The increase in the revenue is estimated at 43,000,000 francs.

The Paris correspondent of the London Globe says that from Vincennes, Metz, and every arsenal in France, guns and stores were on the move for the Mediterranean and Lyons.

The Paris correspondent of the Daily News says the Emperor was making preparations of a nature to indicate that he intends to take the field in person; and that it is certain he burns with the ambition to command an army in actual warfare.

The French Ministers at Hamburg and Frankfort have had an interview with the Emperor. It was reported that they were sent for by him to report as to the state of public feeling in Germany.

The Herald's Paris correspondent continued to write very warlike letters. In his last, he states that an impression prevailed that before the expiration of two months, hostilities will break out.

The Paris Bourse on the 12th and 14th was comparatively steady, but on the 15th the market was flat and depressed, and the 3 per cents. closed at 67.75 for money and 67.70 for account—being a decline during the day of about ¼ per cent.

The Paris correspondent of the London Times is assured that negotiations between the British and French Governments, on the subject of Newfoundland, are about to be resumed, and that the Baron DE LA ROUCERAE LE NOURY is appointed a Commissioner to conduct the negotiations on the part of the French Government.

Information from all parts of France shows that trade had relapsed into complete stagnation, without any symptoms of improvement. Sudden heavy failures had produced uneasiness, and in some manufacturing districts general distrust prevailed. M. BOUSSAN, a banker, had been declared bankrupt at New-Orleans.

The Paris Flour market was dull, but Wheat was steady. The provincial Corn markets were generally firm. The Wine market was firm. Business quiet.

AUSTRIA.

The Oesterreichische Correspondenz contains an official article in which it is admitted that the speech made by the Emperor NAPOLEON at the opening of the Legislative Assembly is calculated to dissipate the apprehensions of war which have recently been entertained in Europe—more particularly if it is followed by a cessation of the armaments which have been going forward in France. The article intimates that Austria is quite willing to take as a basis for diplomatic discussions on her temporary occupation of Central Italy, whatever may be agreed on between the two Western Powers, and has no doubt that matters will thus be brought to successful result.

It was generally believed that the bids in London for the Six Million Austrian Loan were only between £1,000,000 and £1,500,000.

SARDINIA.

The Paris correspondent of the London Globe states, as a settled affair, that the King of Sardinia will marry MARIA, daughter of the Grand Duchess MARIA of Russia.

The King of Sardinia had conferred upon the Prince Imperial of France the order of the Annunciade.

NAPLES.

The Neopolitan frigate Stromboli, with the amnested political prisoners on board, was at Cadiz on the 3d February, for the purpose of transferring the prisoners to a Spanish vessel bound to New-York. The commander of the English steamer Amazon had offered at Cadiz to convey all the exiles to England free of charge, but his offer was declined.

The hereditary Grand Duchess of Tuscany, daughter of the King of Saxony, died at Naples.

RUSSIA.

A rumor prevailed that Russia was concentrating troops on the frontiers of Moldavia; and it was asserted that in the event of a war with Italy, an army of 200,000 men will be posted in Russian Poland.

The entire Russian Mediterranean squadron was expected at Nice in the month of March.

THE IONIAN ISLANDS.

Mr. GLADSTONE has formally presented the reply of Queen Victoria to the Ionian Assembly. Her Majesty tells the Ionians she can neither consent to abandon the obligations she has undertaken, nor can she, very, not permit, any application to any other power in furtherance of any similar design, as she is the sole organ of the Ionian States in the Councils of Europe. She will enforce obedience to the laws, but has injected the measures she deemed most conducive to the good of the Ionian people, and she trusts the assembly will accept of their Parliament.

Mr. GLADSTONE subsequently addressed the Assembly at great length, and recommended them to consider the reforms which he proposed to them.

The discount market was without change. The West India mail steamer had brought bullion for specie.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

PARKER HOUSE, BOSTON, Thursday, Feb. 24, 1859.

I do everything with a rush. In fact I ought to have been born in Russia. I conceived the other morning the desperate idea of forsaking New-York and all its blandishments, and coming to Boston. New-York is essentially vagabond; Boston eminently respectable. To leave the first and take up with the last is an operation resembling that which the young rake goes through when he quits dissipation and settles down. Sow your wild oats in New-York if you will, but Boston is the place for steady farming.

The State of Maine steamboat received my precious person on board at Pier No. 4. After I had secured my staterooms, I naturally gravitated to the dining saloon to look after my supper. My imaginations of that majestic refectory will never be effaced. It seemed like a restaurant opened by the goddess Flora. The tables were a perfect Palais Royal of artificial flowers, growing out of cheap ormolu vases; while here and there in the interstices were a few burnt offerings of cindery mutton chops, looking like lumps of guano measuring that blooming plain. What mockeries of flowers they were to be sure! Poor faded muslin blossoms, that smirked continually in the glare of a gas-light day. The calyxes were grimy with dirt; the leaves greasy with the deposits of smoking dishes. How many years they had done duty I really fear to say, but the head nigger waiter regarded them with a proud eye, and doubtless thought the effect fine. I think, however—being a poor, weak and sinful mortal who clings to flesh pots—that it would have been better had there been more meat and less vegetables.

New method of computing distances:—when I say that Boston is exactly twenty-four cigars and six brandy cock-tails distant from New-York do I make myself understood?

Boston seems to me—this is my first visit—to have been here a long time. There is a quiet air of antiquity about it that is a pleasant contrast to the fever and turmoil of New-York. It impresses me as a gentleman of the old school. Its houses seem to wear periwigs, and its street-door scrapers have the air of silver shoe-buckles. I feel as if I were in company that knew the nice conduct of a clouded cane, wore frilled shirts, and took snuff with an air, Sir, that—God's life—the young fellows of the present day could never imitate, strike me!

Then, the Common! O, Editor of a great New-York daily, may I praise the Common without touching on the corns of the Central Park? Is it admissable to say that aught in Boston equals anything in Manhattan—past, present, or to come? May I exult in that beautiful expanse of turf and trees, nestling in the very heart of the great city, as the green memories of boyhood still live in the toughened, withered heart of the grown man? Whatever be the consequences, I must say that the Common is my delight of a shiny night, even at this leafless season of the year. Ah!—it did my soul good the other day to walk out there and see the boys playing. The cricket-balls whizzed by my ears, calling up memories of school-days, and the Eleven of England. It was WASHINGTON'S birthday, and the sun came out to do it honor. Gentlemen in unaccustomed uniform marched through the streets to the delectation of the crowd. A ragged regiment of boys led the van, and I absolutely beheld the philosophic EMERSON and the poetic LONGFELLOW gravely bringing up the rear.

But better and worthier celebration of the hero's nativity was the sight on the Common. Young Boston in precarious boots and equivocal breeches was there in force. Future heroes of the Republic slid on their cutters on the Frog-pond. Solid men, that were to be, wrestled on the slippery soil, and tumbled on the wet sod. I noted with delight that the Anglo-Saxon spirit of chaff was dominant among those sucking Senators and merchants. The young days here have a keen nose for a stranger, and were in full cry after me in a short while. They ran me to earth at the flag-staff, and then opened on me. My English trousers underwent a searching but impartial criticism. My whiskers were indecorously alluded to. My sturdy shooting boots excited comments in which sarcasm and a simple juvenile wonder were blended. I felt that it was necessary, if I would retain my self-respect, to make an effort. Reminiscences of my young days, when I could hold my own against the London cabmen, came back upon me. I addressed myself to the struggle, and retorted upon the youthful commentators with that playful irony, which is so unjustly called "slang." My antagonists I soon found were raw troops, and easily discomfited. They retired sullenly, firing a few guns in retreat.

The great event of this week has been the birthday of JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL. A number of his friends gave him a dinner on that occasion at the Parker House, which came off on last Wednesday with éclat. AGASSIZ sat at the head of the table; and LONGFELLOW at the foot. LOWELL himself sat on the ichthyological Professor's right hand, while EMERSON occupied the seat on the left. Au reste, the guests were STILLMAN, the author and artist; Doctor HOLMES; UNDERWOOD, author of "Bulls and Bears," now publishing in the Atlantic Monthly; Mr. EDMUND QUINCY, Professor FELTON, Mr. DWIGHT, of the Journal of Music, with others equally agreeable or distinguished. The repast was individualized from all ordinary dinners by several additions to the bill of fare not mentioned on the carte. EMERSON read a strangely beautiful poem, suggested by the event celebrated, but as it was personal to Mr. LOWELL it is not likely that it will ever meet the public eye. Doctor HOLMES read another, and Mr. LOWELL replied to these compliments in verse. Several charming birthday gifts were presented to the poet Professor by his friends, among others a picture by STILLMAN, and the whole affair—brilliant literary fire-work as it was—terminated without the usual display of the charred sticks, and cludgy framework that succeed the splendor of a pyrotechnic evening.

The artists are busy here. I was in the studio of Mr. BRIZZ, the sculptor, the other day, and found him engaged on a miniature bust of the late Mr. PRESCOTT. As I never had the pleasure of seeing that gentleman I cannot speak for the likeness, but I was charmed by some of the finished works which I saw around me. I may particularize a full-length of WEBSTER, which puts POWERS' bronze statue new in the Boston Athenæum to the blush. The pose is easy and dignified, and the clothes, the bug-bear of the sculptor, are managed with a graceful breadth of handling. Talking of POWERS' Webster, there is some discussion as to the best site for it. As Punch said, the best site in my opinion is out of sight.

Mr. BARRY is engaged on a crayon head of the Autocrat of the Breakfast Table. His "Schoolmistress"—an illustration of the heroine of that work—is attracting some attention, and is on exhibition at the store of PHILLIPS, SAMPSON & Co.

Mr. LOWELL is contemplating, I am glad to learn, a further installment of his Biglow Papers. He intends to carry Mr. Birdof Freedum Sawin to KANSAS. In the present death of true humorous poetry, a continuation of the most genially-witty book ever published on this continent will and ought to be a literary event. SAXE has a poem in press with TICKNOR & FIELDS entitled The Money King.

Theatrical matters are slow. The old "Cataract of the Ganges," with its "REAL WATER!!!" is being done at the Boston Theatre. Mr. E. L. DAVENPORT opens on Monday next the Howard Athenæum with our interminable "American Cousin," which will, of course, lead to a fresh lawsuit, and pay as an advertisement.

Mrs. MACREADY has been giving readings, and Governor BANKS has been delivering an oration, but as I did not go to either performance, you must excuse me from drawing on my imagination for an account of the same.

The Tiger and Mount Vernon balls are the topics for speculation at present. They are both to take place in the Boston Theatre, which is to be floored over for the purpose. As I shall, probably, attend both, I may give you some account of them, always provided I have not too bad a headache the next morning.

A new Boston Tea-party, slightly different from the old one, is swinging up here. The merchants complain that all the tea imported goes to New-York. I wonder if this is the result of having a REPUBLICAN for Mayor. Yours,

JACK ROBINSON.

PANAMA, Saturday, Feb. 19, 1859.

The British mail steamship Valparaiso, Captain BARNARD, arrived at Panama on the 7th inst., bringing dates from Valparaiso to the 16th January, Callao and Lima to the 27th, and Guayaquil to the 2d inst. Among the passengers is Don JUAN ELIAS, son of Don DOMINGO ELIAS, exiled from Peru on account of his complicity in a conspiracy against the Government. His gold is enough. The Valparaiso brings $600,000 in silver for England.

[The following letters from our correspondents were in type for the TIMES of yesterday morning, but were crowded out by the pressure upon our columns. We are compelled now to omit several others of minor interest.]

PERU.

President CASTILLA, after the lapse of a whole month, got troops enough together in Lima and Callao to collect like fresh sheep to the fleece to beat the doors and windows from the American ship Lamartine, on the 2d January. The fact was announced in the Comercio next day, double leaded, which sufficiently indicates what a long breath the Government took after the exploit.

But Peru is in a very favorite condition, and all hands predict an early termination of the reign of "Old Boots," as CASTILLA is called. Every day or so some conspiracy is detected, and some conspirators are nuffed. As yet, CASTILLA has been enabled to pay his army, and while he can do this he is comparatively safe. But the bottom of the old new rascals beat the Tycoonship engine from one foot of an hundred ships cinder around their charms of Aladdin—the Chinchas—as you will perceive by your Callao shipping list—and DANIEL GILL & Co., and the rest of the British money lords have too much the fear of Ichabod and Elide, and Roanoke's Islands before their eyes, to advance any more on guano. So, as the fiddlers won't play after the zestin is all gone, you need not look for CASTILLA's soldiers to stick to him when the jungle of Bolivian half-dollars is no longer heard in their pockets.

It is said, now, that CASTILLA is determined at once to commence an active war against Ecuador, unless she is seen found upon her knees before him, in supplication. But I doubt it much. Both sides are waiting for something to turn up: Ecuador hopes for a revolution in Peru, and Peru is waiting for a revolution in Ecuador, to relieve them of the straits they are in; which will beat the other in the game of waiting, is a case of quien sabe. One thing is quite certain, however: if CASTILLA leaves Lima and Callao again without a garrison, in order to make war on Ecuador, he will find his seat has slipped out from under before his soldiers can get back.

On the 13th, a conspiracy against the Government was detected, the object being to get possession of the steam-frigate Callao, formerly the Apurimac, of 44 guns. It is reported that nearly all the officers had been bought up when the conspiracy was detected. The vessel was immediately sent to the island of San Lorenzo, and many persons of note complicated were arrested. Among them is a French captain, and Don JUAN ELIAS, son of Don DOMINGO ELIAS. Don DOMINGO went to the Palace, and through his great influence with the people and CASTILLA's fears, Don JUAN was released on his promise to go to Spain. The other prisoners are: Don Ramon Aspillaga, Joaquin Sevilla, Viviano Gomez Silves, Leon France, Vargas Machuca, Domingo Gamio, Carlos Dies Canseco, José Manuel La Puente, three Señores Villagarcia, Somocurcio, and others of less note. On the 17th, a memorial to Congress was presented by Doña ISABEL CELOMA DE CONGESO, Doña ELISA LAGO DE ZAPATA, Doña AURORA IZARRA DE GAMIO, asking the liberation of their respective husbands, which request was referred to a Committee. The Señora AURORA GAMIO, in a special address to Congress, takes occasion to pitch into CASTILLA, calling him a tyrant, a rogue, and everything else but an honest man.

The next most important event of the fortnight, is the striking of the flag of the French Consul-General in Peru, at Lima. Last August, Monsieur PIRANA DESNIS, a French subject, was arrested and imprisoned at Lima, and since then his release has been constantly and urgently demanded by the French Legation. On the 15th the Consul lowered his flag, took down his arms, and repaired on board the French frigate Andromède, at Callao, where he was received with a salute. The next day the Commander-in-Chief of the French squadron in the Pacific visited the Peruvian Minister of Foreign Relations, and had a long interview. Subsequently the Minister of Foreign Relations replied to the French Admiral's note, saying that the President had directed a note to the cabinet of the French Emperor on the subject. To which the Admiral responded, that while the matter was under discussion at Paris, he should limit himself solely to protecting the persons and property of French subjects, when it was necessary, in which he hoped for the cooperation of the government of Peru. I do not recollect exactly the reason for the Frenchman's imprisonment. I believe, however, he attempted to whip his wife. The police interfered, and he kicked them out of doors. He was then arrested by a large force. If a man has a right to whip his wife anywhere, it ought to be in Lima.

Don ANTONIO ARBILA, who only a fortnight before assumed the duties of Minister of Foreign Relations, resigned it on the 15th, and the place is temporarily filled by Don MANUEL MESALLE.

Don JOSÉ MARIA RAVARA, a General of Division, and a soldier of the Independence, died at Lima on the 14th.

CHILI.

The long-talked of revolution has at last fairly broken out in Chili. On the 5th of January, at Copiapo, a body of the people presented themselves at the cuartel of the soldiers and gendarmes, with a letter from Don PEDRO LEON GALLO, brother of a member of the Chilian Congress, who has just been condemned to death for alleged attempt against the Government at Santiago, in which GALLO advised them that the bearers of the note were charged with causing the balance of the corps to submit to a new order of things. The revolutionary officer there took charge of the cuartel, and barred the gates. GALLO was then proclaimed Intendente. The old Intendente, SALVA CHAMES, after vainly assaying to bring them back to their allegiance, fled to Chañarcillo, where he attempted to organize troops. This news created great consternation at Valparaiso, and in all Government circles throughout the Republic. As soon as the news reached Valparaiso on the 12th, the Esmeralda, a twenty two gun steam vessel, was got ready, and on the 13th she left for Caldera. She had on board half a battalion of the Third Regiment of the line, two companies of the Marine Brigade, four pieces of field artillery, and a picquet of horse, amounting in all to 350 men, under command of Lieutenant Colonel LA FUENTE. The ports of Coquimbo and Caldera are blockaded by the Government so that the British steamer did not touch at them this trip. The ports of Cerazal and Huasco are also blockaded. The whole Republic, with the exception of the Islands Chiloe and Valdivia have been placed under martial law, and martial law at Valparaiso and Santiago has been extended from the original term of ninety days to five months.

The Government papers—all the independent Press including the Mercurio, as you are aware, has been suspended and their editors imprisoned—make light of this affair, and say that no doubt order is already restored. But on the other hand, it is said the revolutionists at Copiapo have already 1,500 men, and are counting upon a general revolution. Besides, the fact that the whole Republic is under martial law, the independent Press stopped, and its ports blockaded by its own vessels, indicates that the Government is not quite so easy on the subject as it pretends to be.

I learn from Capt. BLOOMFIELD that the foreign merchants, though far from coincoiding with the Government in the necessity of stifling the Press, are nearly all opposed to the present movement, and generally express the opinion that the Government will crush it.

The Government was anxiously awaiting news from the South of the Republic, where the malcontents are more numerous and determined—especially in Concepcion, where the revolutionists have ample means, they having, it is now known, surreptitiously imported from Valparaiso and other ports a large supply of arms and ammunition. It is thought Talcahuano, the port for Concepcion, will be blockaded.

When the steamer left, all sorts of warlike reports were in circulation—one that Valparaiso was to be blockaded—another that 4,000 revolutionists were to march from thence to Santiago, the capital, to overturn the Government—and another that the Southern Province of Maule had revolted.

The next steamer will, no doubt, solve the question whether the revolution is to be successful or not.

The Government Military Commission has condemned several persons to death for sedition, but it is thought the sentence will be commuted to imprisonment or exile. The elder GALLO, Member of Congress, is the favorite of the malcontents for the Presidency. At present you will perceive it is extremely doubtful whether he will be shot or promoted.

The publishers of the Mercurio, a very wealthy paper, petitioned the Government for permission to continue it, but have been refused. The Comercio, which assumes to take its place, is an exceedingly stupid sheet.

The Government lately failed in an attempt to raise the rate of taxes upon public banks and conchas, from $45 to $100 per year. The business did not appear in the streets, and the Government only held out a week before it caved in on the question.

The United States sloop-of-war Cyane had arrived at Valparaiso. She took in stores from the Preble for herself and the Merrimack, and was to have sailed for Panama on the 18th, touching only at Coquimbo, but she not been carelessly run into by the Esmeralda, on the 12th. The Government requested her commander to send to it all the bills for repairs, which will probably be a thousand or two dollars. Mr. EDWARD CORNEY, formerly of the Alta-California, lately appointed United States Consul at Mazatlan, was to have taken passage in her on the 20th.

The British ship Genie, from Australia, for Valparaiso, got on the rocks to the southward of San Antonio, on the 9th, and became a total wreck.

The British steam-propeller Forward, of 650 tons, from Liverpool, was expected at Valparaiso in a few days, and was advertised in the Comercio to take freight and passengers to Vancouver's Island and San Francisco.

A party composed of three Americans, says a correspondent of the Star, one Frenchman, one Portuguese and two Chilenos—in all seven persons—started from Talcahuano on an excursion to Tarril in a new sail-boat, which had just been finished, and on their return the same evening were caught by a squall, or by some mishap, when the boat capsized and sunk. Not one of the seven has been left to tell the story—all perished. The Americans were all residents of Talcahuano and respectable men. Their names were DAVIDSON L. FREEMAN, formerly of Holmes Hole, Mass., Hosiah Young, from New-Bedford, formerly a captain in the whaling service, and BENJ. DOANE, a ship-builder. The two former leave families in Talcahuano. The bodies of DOANE and the Frenchman were all that were recovered.

AGRICULTURAL COLLEGES.

Veto Message of the President—His Objections to the Bill for Giving Public Lands for Agricultural Colleges.

To the House of Representatives of the United States:

I return, with my objections, to the House of Representatives, in which it originated, the bill entitled "An act donating public lands to the several States and Territories which may provide colleges for the benefit of agriculture and the mechanic arts," presented to me on the 19th inst.

This bill makes a donation to the several States, of twenty thousand acres of the public lands for each Senator and Representative in the present Congress; and, also, an additional donation of twenty thousand acres for each additional Representative to which any State may be entitled under the census of 1860.

According to a report from the Interior Department, based upon the present number of Senators and Representatives, the lands given to the States amount to six millions and sixty thousand acres, and their value, at the minimum government price of $1 25 per acre, to $7,575,000.

The object of this gift, as stated by the bill, is "the endowment, support, and maintenance of at least one college (in each State) where the leading object shall be, without excluding other scientific or classical studies, to teach such branches of learning as are related to agriculture and the mechanic arts, as the legislatures of the States may respectively prescribe, in order to promote the liberal and practical education of the industrial classes in the several pursuits and professions in life."

As there does not appear from the bill to be any beneficiaries in existence, to which this endowment can be applied, each State is required "to provide, within five years at least, not less than one college, or the grant to said State shall cease." In that event the "said State shall be bound to pay the United States the amount received of any lands previously sold, and that the title to purchasers under the State shall be valid."

The grant in land itself is confined to such States as have public lands within their limits worth one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre, in the opinion of the Governor. For the remaining States the Secretary of the Interior is directed to issue "land scrip to the amount of their distributive shares in acres under the provisions of this act; said scrip to be sold by said States, and the proceeds thereof applied to the uses and purposes prescribed in this act, and for no other use or purpose whatsoever." The lands are granted and the scrip is to be issued "in sections or subdivisions of sections not less than one quarter of a section."

According to an estimate from the Interior Department, the number of acres which will probably be accepted by States having public lands within their own limits, will not exceed 500,000 acres, and it may be much less; leaving a balance of 5,460,000 acres to be provided for by scrip.

These grants of land and land scrip to each of the thirty-three States are made upon certain conditions, the principal of which is, that if the fund shall be lost or diminished on account of unfortunate investments, or otherwise, the deficiency shall be replaced and made good by the respective States.

I shall now proceed to state my objections to this bill. I deem it to be both inexpedient and unconstitutional.

1. This bill has been passed at a period when we can with great difficulty raise sufficient revenue to sustain the expenses of the Government. Should it become a law, the Treasury will be deprived of the whole, or nearly the whole, of our income from the sale of public lands, which, for the next fiscal year, has been estimated at five millions of dollars.

A bare statement of the case will make this evident. The minimum price at which we dispose of our lands is $1 25 per acre. At the present moment, however, the price has been reduced to those who purchase the bounty land warrants of the old soldiers to 85 cents per acre; and of those warrants there are still outstanding and unlocated, as appears by a report (12th February, 1859,) from the General Land Office, the amount of 11,990,291 acres. This has already greatly reduced the current sales by the Government, and diminished the revenue from this source. If, in addition, thirty-three States shall enter the market with their land scrip, the price must be greatly reduced below even 85 cents per acre, as much to the prejudice of the old soldiers who have not already parted with their land warrants as to Government. It is easy to perceive that with this glut of the market Government can sell little or no lands at $1 25 per acre, when the price of bounty land warrants and scrip shall be reduced to half this sum. This source of revenue will be almost entirely dried up. Under the bill the States may sell their land scrip at any price it may bring. There is no limitation whatever in this respect. Indeed, they must sell for what the scrip will bring, for without this fund they cannot proceed to establish their colleges within the five years to which they are limited. It is manifest, therefore, that to the extent to which this bill will prevent the sale of the public lands at $1 25 per acre to that amount it will have precisely the same effect upon the Treasury as if we should impose a tax or create a loan to endow these State Colleges.

Surely the present is the most unpropitious moment which could have been selected for the passage of this bill.

2. Waiving for the present the question of constitutional power, what effect will this bill have on the relations established between the Federal and State Governments? The Constitution is a grant to Congress of a few enumerated but most important powers relating chiefly to war, peace, foreign and domestic commerce, negotiation, and other subjects which can be best or alone exercised beneficially by the common government. All other powers are reserved to the States and to the people. For the efficient and harmonious working of both it is necessary that their several spheres of action should be kept distinct from each other. This alone can prevent conflict and mutual injury. Should the time ever arrive when the State Governments shall look to the Federal Treasury for the means of supporting themselves and maintaining their systems of education and internal policy, the character of both governments will be greatly deteriorated. The representatives of the States and of the people, feeling a more immediate interest in obtaining money to lighten the burdens of their constituents than for the promotion of the more distant objects intrusted to the Federal Government, will naturally incline to obtain means from the Federal Government for State purposes. If a question shall arise between an appropriation of land or money to carry into effect the objects of the Federal Government and those of the States, their feelings will be enlisted in favor of the latter. This is human nature; and hence the necessity of keeping the two Governments entirely distinct. The preponderance of this home feeling has been manifested by the passage of the present bill. The establishment of these colleges has prevailed over the pressing wants of the common treasury. No nation ever had such an inheritance as we possess in the public lands. These ought to be managed with the utmost care, but at the same time with a liberal spirit towards actual settlers.

In the first year of a war with a powerful naval nation the revenue from customs must in a great degree cease. A resort to loans will then become necessary, and these can always be obtained as our fathers obtained them, on advantageous terms, by pledging the public lands as security. In this view of the subject, it would be wiser to grant money to the States for domestic purposes than to squander away the public lands, and transfer them in large bodies into the hands of speculators.

A successful struggle on the part of the State Governments with the General Government for the public lands would deprive the latter of the means of performing its high duties, especially at critical and dangerous periods; besides, it would operate with equal detriment to the best interests of the States. It would remove the most wholesome of all restraints on legislative bodies—that of being obliged to raise money by taxation from their constituents—and would lead to extravagance, if not to corruption. What is obtained easily and without responsibility will be lavishly expended.

3. This bill, should it become a law, will operate greatly to the injury of the new States. The progress of settlements and the increase of an industrious population owning an interest in the soil they cultivate are the causes which will build them into great and flourishing commonwealths. Nothing could be more prejudicial to their interests than for wealthy individuals to acquire large tracts of the public lands, and hold them for speculative purposes. The rapid rise in price which this bill will probably by its passage will tempt speculators to buy it in large amounts and locate it on the best lands before any of the Government. The eventual consequence will be that the men who desire to cultivate the soil will be compelled to purchase these very lands at rates much higher than the price at which they could have obtained from the Government.

4. It is extremely doubtful, to say the least, whether this bill would contribute to the advancement of agriculture and the mechanic arts—objects the importance and value of which cannot be too highly appreciated.

The Federal Government, which derives its authority from the States and the people, has confessedly no constitutional power to engage in the business of teaching agriculture. Agriculture, we shall find, is the most independent of all occupations. It presents no control over our own gift after it shall have passed from our hands. It is true that the State Legislatures are requested to stipulate that they will faithfully execute the trust in the manner prescribed by the bill. But should they fail to do this, what would be the consequence? The Federal Government has no power, and ought to have no power, to compel the execution of the trust. It would be in no helpless condition, as if even in this, the time of great need, we were to demand any portion of the many millions of surplus revenue deposited with the States for safe keeping under the act of 1836.

5. This bill will injuriously interfere with existing colleges in the different States, in many of which agriculture is taught as a science, and in all of which it ought to be so taught. These institutions of learning have grown up with the growth of the country, under the fostering care of the States and the munificence of individuals to meet the advancing demands for education. They have proved great blessings to the people. Many—indeed, most of them—are poor, and sustain themselves with difficulty. What the effect will be on these institutions of creating an indefinite number of rival colleges, endowed by the endowment of the Federal Government, it is not difficult to determine.

Under this bill, it is provided that scientific and classical studies shall not be excluded from them. Indeed, it would be almost impossible to sustain them without such a provision; for no father would incur the expense of sending a son to one of these institutions for the sole purpose of making him a scientific farmer or mechanic. The bill itself negatives this idea, and declares that their object is "to promote the liberal and practical education of the industrial classes in the several pursuits and professions of life." This certainly ought to be the case. In this view of the subject, it would be far better, if such an appropriation of land must be made to institutions of learning in the several States, to apply it directly to the establishment of professorships of agriculture and the mechanic arts in existing colleges without the intervention of the State Legislatures. It would be difficult to foresee how these legislatures will manage this fund. Each representative in Congress, for whose district the proportion of 20,000 acres has been granted, will probably insist that the proceeds shall be expended within its limits. There will undoubtedly be a struggle between different localities in each State concerning the division of the gift, which may end in disappointing the hopes of the true friends of agriculture. For this state of things we are without remedy. Not so in regard to State colleges. We might grant land to these corporations to establish agricultural and mechanical professorships, and, should they fail to comply with the conditions on which they accepted the grant, we might enforce specific performance of these before the ordinary courts of justice.

6. But does Congress possess the power, under the Constitution, to make a donation of public lands to the different States of the Union to provide colleges for the purpose of educating their own people?

I presume the general proposition is undeniable that Congress does not possess the power to appropriate money in the Treasury raised by taxes on the people of the United States for the purpose of educating the people of the respective States. It will not be pretended that any such power is to be found among the specific powers granted to Congress, or that it "is necessary and proper for carrying into execution" any one of these powers. Should Congress exercise such a power, this would be to break down the barriers which have been so carefully constructed in the Constitution to separate Federal from State authority. We should then not only "lay and collect taxes, duties, imposts and excises" for Federal purposes, but for every State purpose which Congress might deem expedient or useful. This would be an actual consolidation of the Federal and State Governments, so far as the great taxing and money power is concerned, and constitute a sort of partnership between the two in the Treasury of the United States equally ruinous to both.

But it is contended that the public lands are placed upon a different footing from money raised by taxation, and that the proceeds arising from their sale are not subject to the limitations of the Constitution, but may be appropriated or given away by Congress, at its own discretion, to States, corporations, or individuals, for any purpose they may deem expedient.

The advocates of this bill attempt to sustain their position upon the language of the second clause of the third section of the fourth article of the Constitution, which declares that "the Congress shall have power to dispose of, and make all needful rules and regulations respecting the territory or other property belonging to the United States." They contend that, by a fair interpretation of the words "dispose of" in this clause, Congress possesses the power to make this gift of public lands to the States for purposes of education.

It would require clear and strong evidence to induce the belief that the framers of the Constitution, after having limited the powers of Congress to certain precise and specific objects, intended, by employing the words "dispose of," to give that body unlimited power over the vast public domain. It would be a strange anomaly indeed to have created two funds, the one by taxation confined to the execution of the enumerated powers delegated to Congress, and the other from the public lands, applicable to all subjects, foreign and domestic, which Congress might designate. That this fund should be "disposed of," not to pay the debts of the United States, nor "to raise and support armies," nor "to provide and maintain a Navy," nor to accomplish any one of the other great objects enumerated in the Constitution; but be diverted from them to pay the debts of the States, to educate their people, and to carry into effect any other measure of their domestic policy. This would be to confer upon Congress a vast and irresponsible authority, utterly at war with the well-known jealousy of Federal power which prevailed at the formation of the Constitution. The natural intendment would be that, as the Constitution confined Congress to well-defined specific powers, the funds placed at their command, whether in land or money, should be appropriated to the performance of the duties corresponding with these powers. If not, a government has been created with all its other powers carefully limited, but without any limitation in respect to the public lands.

But I cannot so read the words "dispose of" as to make them embrace the idea of "giving away." The true meaning of words is always to be ascertained by the subject to which they are applied, and the known general intent of the law-giver. Congress is a trustee, under the Constitution, for the people of the United States, to "dispose of" their public lands, and I think I may venture to assert, with confidence, that no case can be found, in which a trustee in the position of Congress, has been authorized to "dispose of" property, by his trust, when it has ever been held that these words authorized such trustee to give away the fund intrusted to his care. No trustee, when called upon to account for the disposition of the property placed under his management, before any judicial tribunal, would venture to present such a plea in his defence. The true meaning of these words is clearly stated by Chief Justice TANEY, in delivering the opinion of the Court, (19 Howard, p. 436.) He says, in reference to this clause of the Constitution, "It begins its enumeration of powers by that of disposing; in other words, making sale of the lands, or raising money from them, which, as we have already said, was the main object of the cession, (from the States,) and which is the first thing provided for in the article." It is unnecessary to refer to the history of the times to establish the known fact that this statement of the Chief Justice is perfectly well founded. That it never was intended by the framers of the Constitution that these lands should be given away by Congress is manifest from the concluding portion of the same clause. By it, Congress has power not only "to dispose of" the territory, but of the "other property of the United States." In the language of the Chief Justice, (p. 437:) "And the same power of making needful rules respecting the territory is in precisely the same language applied to the other property of the United States, associating the power over the territory, in this respect, with the power over moveable or personal property—that is, the ships, arms, or munitions of war which then belonged in common to the State sovereignties."

The question is still clearer in regard to the public lands in the States and Territories within the Louisiana and Florida purchases. These lands were paid for out of the Public Treasury from money raised by taxation. Now, if Congress has the power to appropriate the money with which these lands were purchased, is it not clear that the power over the lands is equally limited? The mere conversion of this money into land could not confer upon Congress new power over the disposition of land which they had not possessed over money. If it could, then a trustee, by changing the character of the fund intrusted to his care for special objects, from money into land, might give the land away or devote it to any purpose he thought proper, however foreign from the trust. The inference is irresistible that this land partakes of the very same character with money paid for it, and can be devoted to no objects different from those to which the money could have been devoted. If this were not the case, then, by the purchase of a new territory from a foreign Government out of the public treasury, Congress could enlarge their own powers and appropriate the proceeds of the sales of the land thus purchased, at their own discretion, to other and for different objects from what they could have applied the purchase money which had been raised by taxation.

It has been asserted truly that Congress, in numerous instances, have granted lands for purposes of education. Those grants have been chiefly, if not exclusively, made to the new States, as they successively entered the Union, and consisted at the first of one section, and afterwards of two sections of the public lands in each township for the use of schools, as well as of additional sections for a State University. Such grants are not, in my opinion, a violation of the Constitution. The United States is a great landed proprietor, and from the very nature of this relation it is both the right and the duty of Congress, as their Trustee, to manage these lands as any other prudent proprietor would manage them for his own best advantage. Now, no consideration could be presented of a stronger character to induce the American people to brave the difficulties and hardships of frontier life, and to settle upon these lands and purchase them at a fair price, than to give to them and to their children an assurance of the means of education. If any prudent individual had sold these lands he could not have adopted a wiser course to bring them into market and enhance their value than to give a portion of them for purposes of education. As a mere question of policy, this has been found to be a most judicious one. But this is very different from the question of the right to make a donation of the public lands to the States for this purpose.

7. Should this bill become a law, it may be expected that an Agricultural College will be established in New-York by the Legislature of that State, in order to secure the benefit of the act of Congress. The State of New-York is now in possession of a large quantity of public lands in the State of California. This cannot possibly be construed into a donation of the public lands in California to the State of New-York, with the authority which a proprietor would exercise over his own property. It may safely avoid any attempt to define what property may be granted, and for what purposes.

CORRUPTION IN CONGRESS.

Report of the Committee on the Charge Against a Member of the House of Representatives.

In the House, on the 24th inst., Mr. HIGHTON, from the Select Committee which was appointed to investigate charges against a member of the Committee on Accounts, made in the Washington correspondence of the New-York TIMES, made the following report:

The Committee, in executing the order of the House, brought before them the witnesses whose testimony in keeping appeared. Very early in the examination of the first witness, Mr. TWEEDDALE, it was developed that JOHN A. BARRERE, a member of the House from the State of New-York, and Chairman of the Committee on Accounts of this House, was the individual alluded to in the correspondence of the New-York TIMES, upon which this investigation was based. So soon as this fact was elicited, the Committee, by a unanimous vote, determined to suspend the examination until Mr. BARRERE could be informed that he was at liberty to attend the examination and to confront the witnesses mentioning him, and that he had the permission of the Committee to cross-examine the witnesses upon any point submitted by them, if he desired so to do.

Mr. BARRERE accordingly appeared before the Committee, and declined to cross-examine, expressing a desire that the Committee should continue the entire examination.

The House will perceive that the examination took a wide range, and that hearsay testimony, and testimony not in strict accordance with the principles of evidence, was admitted against Mr. BARRERE, and is submitted with this report. All of this, however, was admitted, subject to objection by Mr. BARRERE. He, however, signified his assent to the mode of procedure adopted by the Committee, and expressed a desire that the examination might proceed with the largest latitude.

Upon examination it will be found that the witness, FRANCOIS, swears that he offered to Mr. BARRERE the sum of $100 in consideration of his services on the Committee on Accounts in passing his claim of $2,622 75, which offer, as he alleges, Mr. BARRERE accepted, and subsequently upon the allowance of the account, to hereinafter stated, demanded the payment of the $400 by the witness, but that no money was ever paid Mr. BARRERE. The account, as allowed, was for the sum of $2,222, being a deduction of 33 per cent upon the original amount of the bill, and the evidence shows that in committee Mr. BARRERE favored the reduction.

If FRANCOIS is to be believed Mr. BARRERE is guilty; there is no other evidence upon which a conclusion of guilt can rest. What degree of credit should attach to the testimony of FRANCOIS the Committee do not attempt to decide. It is a question for the House alone.

The Committee are of the opinion, however, that, upon the whole case, the evidence would not warrant the conviction of Mr. BARRERE of the offence charged.

As the resolution of the House only directs an investigation and a report during the present session, without recommending any specific action, this report might be closed here. It is due, however, to the other members of the Committee on Accounts, to state that no charge has been made or fact elicited against them, or any one of them. On the contrary, it is distinctly proved that their conduct in connection with the organization of this House, has been characterized by strict integrity, and by a second regard for economy. In the language of one of the witnesses, "there is no charge or rumor against them;" and, from the testimony, your Committee, to adopt the language of the same witness, will conclude by saying that "there is no breath of suspicion affecting their character or action."

In all matters pertaining to the examination of the subject referred to them, your Committee have been unanimous in their conclusions.

The Committee here with report the following resolution:

Resolved, That upon a review of all the testimony taken in the matter of the charge against JOHN A. BARRERE, a member of this House from the State of New-York, and Chairman of the Committee of Accounts, the evidence would not warrant a conviction nor subject him to expulsion.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

British Annexation in the Pacific—Purchase of the Feejee Islands.

The Sydney Morning Herald, received by the last Australian mail, furnishes the unexpected intelligence that the number of British colonial possessions has been augmented by the acquisition of the Feejee Islands. The Herald tells the story:

"We learn from a reliable source that on the 11th September last a formal deed of cession of the Feejeean Archipelago to Her Britannic Majesty was executed by THAKOMBAU, the Vunivalu of Bau, claiming supremacy, as Tui-Viti, (King of Feejee,) over the entire archipelago and its inhabitants. We understand that Mr. PRESGRAVE, the British Consul, arrived in Sydney from Feejee several days since, by the John Wesley, and that, although the affair has been kept very quiet, he is about to proceed to England with the instrument alluded to.

The American ship-of-war Vandalia, Captain SINCLAIR, arrived at Feejee early in September, to demand payment of the fines imposed by Captain BERRYMAN, of the John Adams. THAKOMBAU offered apologies and explanations as to the non-payment of these fines, which were deemed so far sufficient that an extension of twelve months was granted by Captain SINCLAIR, but with an intimation—counted in the strongest terms—that if such fines, amounting to $45,600, (about £9,040,) were not paid at the end of twelve months, force would be resorted to.

Immediately after this, propositions by THAKOMBAU for a cession to the Queen of Great Britain, were made to Her Majesty's local representative, the Consul. The deed of cession finally executed contains stipulations, we believe, to the following effect:

1. That the American claims against Feejee shall be paid or settled by her Britannic Majesty's Government.

2. That THAKOMBAU shall be allowed (as Tui-Viti) to retain his position as chief of the aboriginal tribes, but to govern under instructions from the local representatives of her Majesty.

3. That in consideration of the $45,600 paid to satisfy American claims, 200,000 acres of land shall be made over to her Majesty's Government; such 200,000 acres to be selected by a British appointee.

4. That in addition to this grant of 200,000 acres, there shall be grants of such other lands as may be needed for local governmental purposes; such requirements to be agreed upon by a Commission, to consist of two Feejeean chiefs and two British gentlemen, presided over by the local representative of her Majesty, the latter official to act as umpire in all disputed questions."

A BRIDE BURNED TO DEATH.—The Louisville Journal says a young lady named SHUCK was burned to death at Lebanon, Ky., a few days since, on her wedding day. The wedding was to have taken place at 11 o'clock on Monday morning and the happy company to have started to Louisville on the evening train. Just a few moments before the time for the ceremony, Mr. THOMAS, the bridegroom, swung open the door of the chamber where he was alone with the bride, and the wind made by the movement blew her veil into the fireplace. Of course she was instantly enveloped in the flames. Mr. THOMAS was so bewildered that he could render little or no assistance. The screams of the sufferer brought her father, sister and several other persons to the top of the stairs where she had gone in her excitement. Water and other means were used to extinguish the fire—but before it could be done she was dreadfully burned. After her wounds were dressed the ceremony was performed—but alas, the

What Should be Done with the City Hall Park.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I want the privilege of saying a few words in your columns about the City Hall Park, with there is pending, I believe, some proposition to alter it.

First—I don't own a foot of land within a mile and a half of it, and never expect to.

Second—It is a nuisance. The trees are a nuisance, with their nasty worms dropping upon you like rain in the Summer, and creeping into your neck and bosom, and to be crushed in your pocket—with their thick branches and leaves, hiding all view across the Park, hiding the clock, hiding whatever of beauty there is in the surrounding buildings. The marble basin is a nuisance, and would be more so if the fountain should play in it occasionally, which it never will. The posts and chains are a nuisance. The surrounding fence is a nuisance—below the City Hall. Who would fence in and plant trees in Chatham or Hanover squares?

We want greatly a large, open plaza, thus central to turn round in—a terminus for omnibus and cars and I would propose to remove the present fence, below the Hall, run a fence across, parallel with the front of the Hall, from opposite Murray-street to opposite the lower side of Frankfort-street, with a large gate in front of the Hall; to have a broad sidewalk outside of this fence, from Broadway to Chatham-street, to remove all the trees, &c., and pave or Macadamize that triangle, from the curb on the west side of Broadway to the curb on the east side of Chatham-street, including the space between Tryon-row and the Times Office.

And let me say here that this need not affect the question of placing the Post-office at the lower point of the triangle; it will only make a better place for the Post-office.

As you are going out or coming in, step a little aside to St. Paul's Church and to the steps of the City Hall, and imagine this change made, and tell me if it would not be a vast improvement in appearance, to say nothing of the utilities. Now for the utilities.

First—It opens (without expense) Frankfort-street and Spruce-street and Beekman-street to the North River, and it opens Murray-street and Park place and Barclay-street to the East River—all improvements of immense value.

Second—By thus opening those streets and uniting this one open space that part of the Park and Tammany Hall-square, the space is greatly multiplied for all useful purposes.

Third—All omnibus routes could end there, with small supplemental lines to the ferries. The relief of Broadway would be complete for the present generation. It is now blocked up with empty omnibuses from Vesey-street to the Battery. They cannot turn round short of the Bowling-green.

Fourth—The omnibus routes being cut short about a mile, their fare would be reduced to five cents, with a gain to them—and their convenience and that of the public would be greatly promoted by the opportunity for selecting among the starting stages one most suited to the want of the passenger.

Don't call this vandalism because there happens to be a few trees in the question. Trees are beautiful in a forest, in a grove, in the fields, in a park, where you want shade, or fruit, or majestic beauty, or a charming landscape—but a few dwarf and barren trees, filthy and noxious, obstructing the freedom of a busy city, are in the way at least, and in my judgment so much so as to lose their beauty. Dr. Bennett, of New-Haven, from whom Mrs. Bennett obtained a divorce, is said to be diligently engaged in making arrangements to raise the money to pay the alimony soon to be due to Mrs. Bennett; and has made transfer of his life interest, rents, sold his property, &c., for the purpose of giving security in order to raise the money needed, and it will be paid soon after the meeting of the Court. It is stated, on his behalf, that the suits brought were for contested claims in which the Doctor does not consider himself liable; that under his barn there was a vault made on purpose to store and keep the Doctor's goods, and that in this place were put the articles named as having been taken by the Sheriff, without any intention, as the Doctor says, of secreting anything.

An English paper gives this theatrical anecdote: When Mr. Edmund Glover, the present lessee of the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, was a member of the dramatic company at Bath, some years ago, he announced his benefit, and his mother consented to appear as Mrs. Oakley in the "Jealous Wife." At the conclusion of the comedy his mother acknowledged the profusion of compliments, and said: "On another occasion I stood on this stage and played the same character to the Mr. Oakley of my father, the late Mr. Betterton. To-night I have repeated it, with what success you all know; the Mr. Oakley is my son. Between the first appearance I speak of, and this to-night, there has been a lapse of 43 years."

Mme. Bosio was hissed the other night at the Italian Theatre, St. Petersburg, for having a few nights before caused the performance to be changed on pretext that she was ill, and yet gone to a grand party in the house of a Princess, and sang there as charmingly as ever. The hissing was remarkable for two reasons: first, because no prima donna ever before received such a castigation; secondly, because Mme. Bosio had previously been highly esteemed by the Petersburgers.

Father Chiniquy, the converted Romanist, was recently ordered to leave Quebec, where he had gone to preach, by the citizens of the parish of St. Roch, who surrounded the house where he stopped, entered and bade him leave, without a moment's delay, which he was compelled to do. As he passed through the crowd he was saluted by various opprobrious epithets, and "there were none, not even the women," says the Journal de Quebec, "who had not some reproach to launch at him."

Mr. Stephen Massett (Jeems Pipes) narrowly escaped death a few days ago, while traveling on the South Carolina Railroad. At a point about forty miles from Augusta a pistol-ball was fired through the car-window, just passing his head. A similar outrage was perpetrated a few days previously. It is suspected that both are the revenge of some discharged employee of the Road.

An English paper says that the new work upon which Charles Dickens is engaged is not to be published, but to be read by himself; and, further, that he realized upwards of £5,000 by his readings last year. Thackeray, according to the same authority, took yet away twice the sum named, as the proceeds of his lectures.

The funeral of the Rev. Joy H. Fairchild took place at the Methodist Church in South Boston on Wednesday. The officiating minister, Mr. Burgess, took occasion to defend Mr. Fairchild's reputation, and "rejoiced that the portals of that Church had never been closed against him."

SUPREME COURT—General Term—Feb. 28.

THE PARISH WILL CASE.

Matter of the Will of Henry Parish.—This is a rehearing of the appeals from the Surrogate's decision in this cause.

It will be remembered that the Surrogate admitted to probate a will executed in September, 1842, which, if valid, disposed of the testator's whole estate. His brothers, James and Daniel, are the residuary devisees and legatees. The Surrogate admitted, in like manner, an alleged codicil, dated August, 1849, which, if valid, took certain of the real estate out of the operation of the residuary devisees in the will and gave the same to Susan M. his wife. He rejected two other papers purporting to be codicils; these papers sought to revoke the said residuary disposition in favor of Susan M. as substituted donee.

From this decision three separate appeals were taken to the Supreme Court.

Mrs. Sherman and Miss Nancy Parish, two sisters of the decedent appealed from the decision admitting the will and the first codicil.

Mrs. Susan M. Parish and Mr. Joseph Delafield separately appealed from the decision regarding the second and third codicils.

The Supreme Court affirmed all the conclusions of the Surrogate, except that in favor of the first codicil. That decision was reversed upon the facts, and thereupon an issue was directed according to the statute. This decision of the Supreme Court was reported in the Times of Thursday, Jan. 6.

A rehearing was asked for and ordered; and the second argument comes on to-day.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The screw steamship City of Baltimore, from Liverpool on the morning of the 16th of February, with four days' later European advices, arrived at this port about 1 o'clock this morning. We publish elsewhere such portions of her news as the time will permit.

The excitement in the City yesterday relative to the Sickles homicide in Washington was most intense, and such was the eagerness to obtain the details of the affair, that a very large extra edition of THE TIMES was entirely absorbed at an early hour, and not a copy could be obtained. In Washington, also, the excitement continued unabated, and the merits of the case were freely canvassed. Mr. SICKLES was visited in prison by numerous friends. His counsel, learning that the Grand Jury of the District are to assemble on Monday next, have decided to waive a preliminary examination, so that no application for bail will be made. Mr. SICKLES will thus, while he remains in prison a few days longer, avoid the premature disclosure of his line of defence which the examination would entail. There was an intimation yesterday that Mr. BUTTERWORTH had been arrested as an accessory before the fact, but such is not the case. The attempt will probably be made, however, thus to implicate him, but it is believed that it will be unsuccessful. A rumor also prevailed that a brother of the deceased had declared his intention to kill SICKLES on the first opportunity. Mrs. SICKLES still remains in Washington.

The Appropriation bills occupied almost exclusively the attention of Congress, yesterday. In the Senate, after another refusal to take up the Homestead bill, Committees of Conference were appointed, to meet similar Committees from the House, relative to the disagreements on the amendments to the Legislative, Executive and Judicial, and the Consular and Diplomatic Appropriation bills. Mr. HOUSTON made his farewell address to the Senate, in which he reviewed and vindicated his course in Congress. The Post-Office Appropriation bill, which calls for an aggregate of upwards of $19,000,000, was then taken up, and discussed for several hours. An amendment was adopted, which provides that in no event shall the liabilities be allowed to exceed the appropriations for the current fiscal year. Several other important amendments were adopted, but the final vote was not taken. In the House a colloquy of a personal nature took place between Messrs. REAGAN and BRYAN, of Texas, which created considerable excitement. The Naval Appropriation bill was passed—the amendments reducing the Navy-yard appropriations from $1,192,000 to $130,000, and reducing the appropriation for repairs, armament, etc., from $3,100,000 to $1,900,000, having been concurred in. Mr. PHELPS asked leave to report a bill to revise the Treasury-note act, but the House refused to suspend the rules. He then moved to go into Committee on the General Appropriation bill, which was agreed to. A motion to strike out the Coast Survey appropriation was unsuccessful. The report of the Committee appointed to investigate the accounts of the late Superintendent of Public Printing was received. It censures Mr. SEAMAN for improper and illegal conduct.

It seems to be pretty well decided that the Administration has again backed out of the intention to recognize the Liberal Government in Mexico, and to receive Señor MATA as its representative. The Cabinet held another motion yesterday for the discussion of the meeting, but nothing whatever was done. The President now awaits the details of the news by the Tennessee, and intimates that if they shall warrant such a step, the JUAREZ Government will then be recognized. There is a rumor that the delay in this important and necessary step is caused by the difficulty in deciding upon the proper person to occupy the position of Minister to Mexico.

The Select Committee of the House appointed to examine the accounts and conduct of General CULLOM, the former Clerk, have made a report acquitting him of any corruption or dishonesty of any kind in the discharge of his duties.

President MARTINEZ, of Nicaragua, in his message addressed to the Legislative Assembly, Jan. 14, reviews the foreign relations of his Government briefly; but evidently assumes that the solution of the transit difficulty is to result from the negotiations of Señor JAREN at Washington. This intimation conflicts with the expectation of an adjustment to be produced by the ratification of the Cass-Irisarri treaty. He also speaks with profound satisfaction of the presence of Sir WILLIAM GORE OUSELEY, as a guarantee of close intimacy and new commercial relations with Great Britain.

The supposed failure of the Cass-Irisarri Treaty has deeply mortified the President, as his whole Central American policy was staked upon its success. Not a single line has been received at the State Department, either from Minister LAMAR or from any one else, explaining the unaccountable silence with reference to it. General JEREZ, the Nicaraguan Minister, is also without dispatches, and declares that the American Government has just cause to complain of such treatment. MARTINEZ, the British messenger, has arrived at the Legation in Washington, with dispatches confirming the news of the ratification of the Treaty negotiated by Sir W. GORE OUSELEY.

Our advices from Hayti are extended to Feb. 5. We have no indications of the policy likely to govern the new administration. The rejoicings over the expulsion of SOULOUQUE are continued, and, of course, the popularity of Gen. GEFFRARD is still unabated. The property of Gen. D'ELVA, the principal adviser of the late Emperor, who is now with him in exile, had been confiscated.

The message of Gen. SANTANA to the Dominican Senate reviews the foreign relations of the Republic; notices the amicable adjustment of the Spanish difficulty, and begs authority to renew the Commercial Treaty with England which is about to expire. He also refers to the friendship and sympathy of the United States.

Among the latest intelligence from the Pacific we have the surprising information that by a deed executed in September last, the Chief of the Fejee Islands assigned the Sovereignty of the Archipelago to Great Britain, in consideration of that Power paying the indemnity exacted by the U. S. sloop-of-war Vandalia, Capt. SINCLAIR, last Fall, for injuries inflicted upon American citizens. The news needs confirmation.

Our advices from San Juan, Porto Rico, are to Feb. 5; and from Mayaguez to Feb. 12. They contain no news of interest.

Advices from Rio Janeiro reach to Jan. 13. They lack importance. The Coffee market was quiet; the shipments however thus far in the year attaining the usual average.

The reports of Mexican news, received by telegraph, are so exceedingly contradictory that it is difficult to arrive at any definite conclusion with reference to them until we can receive our own correspondence. The dispatch published yesterday from New-Orleans, is contradicted in several essential particulars.

Various matters of an interesting nature came before the Legislature yesterday. In the Senate, the bill reorganizing the Health Department of this City under medical officers, was reported complete, and ordered to a third reading. In the Assembly, a bill was reported from the Judiciary Committee to provide for an assessment upon the people of Richmond County for the damages caused by the burning of the Quarantine buildings. The amount of the damages assessed is to be a lien upon the county, and to be collected forthwith by the State Comptroller. The Senate resolutions reorganizing the Judiciary, were reported favorably. The Registry Law bill was made the special order for Friday next.

Another of those dreadful occurrences which too frequently occur on the waters of the Mississippi took place on Sunday morning, near Baton Rouge, La. The steamboat Princess, from Vicksburg for New-Orleans, burst her boiler, and subsequently burnt to the water's edge. She had on board four hundred passengers, of whom two hundred are lost and missing—mostly residents of Louisiana and Mississippi—a large number of whom were ladies. A list of the dead and missing, so far as at present known, is given in our telegraphic report.

Mr. ROBERT WALSH, founder of the Philadelphia National Gazette, and author of several works, died at Paris, Feb. 7. He was a native of Baltimore. Under Mr. VAN BUREN'S Administration, he was appointed U. S. Consul-General at Paris.

The trial of the New-London slaver case is to commence in New-Haven to-morrow.

At the meeting of the Board of Supervisors yesterday, the report of the Special Committee appointed to make estimates of appropriations for the support of the Courts and County offices for 1859 was presented and adopted, and the Board resolved to send to the Legislature an act, reported by the Committee, authorizing the raising by tax for County expenses of a sum not exceeding $1,900,916 65, to be subject to appropriation and disbursement by the Board of Supervisors. A motion for the passage, notwithstanding the veto of the Mayor, of the resolution requesting the Comptroller to give such directions to the Receiver of Taxes as will check the mutilation of the tax lists by the Common Council, was laid over.

The General Markets, yesterday, opened briskly for Cotton, Flour and Wheat, and rather tamely for Corn, Groceries, Provisions, Naval Stores and Oils. Hides, Leather and Whisky were in fair request at buoyant prices. Freights were inactive.

The Washington Tragedy.

The voice of the law has yet to be heard upon the true character, as before the justice of the land, of the terrible transaction which, on the day before yesterday, stained the Sabbath of the National Metropolis with passionate blood passionately shed, and made a legislator of the Union, sworn to calmness, wisdom, self-restraint, the slayer of his fellow-man. We could have wished to await that voice before dealing with the facts of the dreadful story as they come to us from the most authentic sources of public intelligence; for, by a strange anomaly in the development of our jurisprudence, the right of passing formally upon any question of guilt or innocence in our tribunals is still reserved to those who have neither formed nor expressed an opinion upon the subject before them; and we know too well the power of the Press not to feel that every printed word sent forth on such a theme must narrow the circle of men fitted, according to the Law, to discharge the Law's most solemn office. But one, at least, of the journals of New-York has made haste to stamp the seal of Cain upon the forehead of that representative of New-York who now lies prisoned in the Federal City; and this with such ferocity of hate and scorn as makes a calmer, juster utterance of the sentiment of our public absolutely due not more to Mr. SICKLES than to New-York herself.

The City of New-York is not prepared, with the Evening Post, to interpret the fearful deed which has blasted the career of at least two families, instantly and finally, by the light of that past history of the chief actor in the tragedy, which has been invoked to prove Mr. SICKLES a cold-blooded assassin, and his companion, Mr. BUTTERWORTH, a pander and decoy of murder. There are features in the picture which that scene on Pennsylvania-avenue presents to us, so sad beyond all words—so infinitely pregnant with a thousand varieties of suffering and of shame—that they should temper the tones of Justice herself, and silence utterly the discordant cry of party passions and of political animosity. Behind the slayer and the slain—behind the erring, prostrate wife—the innocent faces of young children worse than orphaned, blighted in name, and foreordained to the tender mercies of an inhuman notoriety, plead alike for the sinner and the sinned against. Justice must leave them desolate enough. Injustice, or but intemperate justice, will take from them all that makes life worth the having. For their sakes, then, it becomes us to be at least no swifter than the law in branding infamy upon the men with whose fate their future is so irrevocably bound up. It is not even necessary to assume the guilt of Mr. KEY in his intercourse with Mrs. SICKLES, in order to make us hesitate in pronouncing Mr. SICKLES a willful murderer. If it be held simply that Mr. SICKLES, on the evidence of a confession which he believed to be full and sincere, imagined himself a "dishonored" man, exposed to all the contumely which society awards to the outraged husband whose wrongs it pretends to make its own, and doomed to all the misery which lurks in the ruin of domestic confidence and peace, we can afford him all the palliation which the customary sympathies of mankind extend to men maddened by such a situation.

For the leniency with which men in all countries, even the most civilized, have always looked upon violence done by the injured husband upon the real or the reputed polluter of his home, expresses not the magnitude of the crime itself, but the severity of the trial it inflicts upon human forbearance, and the most secret passions of the human heart. The law refuses to recognize Adultery as an offence of the first gravity, because the law must deal not with human emotions but with human interests; not with the inward experiences of the individual, but with the external economy of society. Custom deals tenderly with the victim of this offence, because men know each other's strength and weakness, understand how terribly sharp is the sting of violated faith, how maddening the present sense and long anticipation of that scornful pity for which the world so soon exchanges its first gush of sympathy with such a sufferer. Let the early career of Mr. SICKLES have been what it may, let it have been all that the Evening Post with prompt malignity would force upon our belief, the simple fact is here before us, that in a few hours of time, the man, a husband and a father, striving for usefulness and success in the world, has been driven by the fury of passion into an act which, whatever its legal event may be, has fixed upon him the shame of a desecrated home and the blood of a slaughtered associate, and has blasted his career in public and in private forever. In comparison with his present and his future, how enviable is the grave of KEY! The dead have the living at a terrible advantage. Time, which dogs the footsteps of the survivor with a thousand recurring rancors, misconceptions, prejudices, smoothes steadily away the sharp outlines of the dead man's failings and his crimes. Public opinion is far more likely to condemn too easily that offence of the dead which stung the living man to madness, than to pass lightly over the frenzy which laid unholy hands upon the sanctities of vengeance, and trampled the law under foot in its hot flight from the horror which winged it first with fire.

Let us not be misunderstood. We do not for a moment advocate the slightest degradation of that high test which makes subordination to the law the supreme test of civilization and of order. The man who, under whatever provocation, takes the life of his fellow-man, is an offender to be forgiven, not a citizen to be commended. The passion which alone can win toleration for his deed proves him unequal to the full standard of manhood. But murder is not a luxury in a country like this. Men do not throw away a career to gratify their thirst of blood under the goading of any ordinary excitement. And thus far, at least, Mr. SICKLES clearly has a claim upon the forbearing suspension of the public judgment, that the worst penalties of the deed which he has done are such as the law can neither impose nor remove. Whatever may become of him, the tragedy in which he has thus become involved will neither make one avenger the more nor one adulterer the less. It might have happened, so far as the leading parties of the story were concerned, at any age and in any quarter of the world.

If it be true that, in the acting of the final scene, a friend of Mr. SICKLES played the part of a decoy to murder, and looked calmly on while his frenzied companion was throwing his own life away in taking that of the man whom he believed to have wronged him, that indeed will be a special feature of the case demanding such public reprobation as has rarely been called for even in these degenerate days, in which partisan passion has so usurped the high place of patriotism, and a savage egotism replaced the generous ideal of chivalric honor. But this we are slow to believe. To assume it lightly would be to confess all extremities of vulgar barbarism possible in the very heart of an American civilization. The latest intelligence from Washington goes far towards removing the grounds on which this horrible charge has been already made, and we sincerely trust that on the formal trial of the whole case, fortunately not long to be deferred, it may be dissipated altogether.

Financial Conquest.

Mr. BUCHANAN'S fine invention in the art diplomatic, of what may be described as "financial conquest," does not seem to prosper even at Washington. Mr. SLIDELL, after exhausting himself, in season and out of season, in the Senate and out of it, upon the President's notable scheme for wheedling this country out of thirty millions of dollars, as a preliminary to plaguing Spain into the sale of Cuba, begins at last to suspect that his ability may hardly be equal to his aspirations, and has caught a glimpse of the fact that a longer and a less agreeable road than Pennsylvania-avenue now divides the White House from the Capitol. This road the somewhat corpulent Senator from Louisiana, on the whole, declines to travel. He will leave matters where they are till the next session. The country will be neither surprised nor displeased to see this "masterly inactivity" kept up for a much longer time in reference to all projects for tormenting Spain into parting with what we cannot just at present afford to purchase, and can never profitably take by force. All that Mr. BUCHANAN and his few remaining friends have taken by this highly ingenious "dodge" of theirs, has been a general conviction in the public mind that nobody can possibly care less for Cuba or more for the public money than themselves; with a scurvy compliment from the London Times on the novelty of their notions of international law, and the sublimity of peddling made Presidential.

For whatever comfort and advantage they may find in these net results, the Administrative clique and claque are wholly indebted to the President himself. The "Thirty Million scheme" was conceived and brought forth by the celibate of the Executive Mansion alone. This fact should be put on record by a grateful people. After maturely weighing the propositions made to him by Spain for the settlement of all our claims upon that country, Mr. BUCHANAN, at the close of the last Summer, came to the conclusion that nothing could be more fair than those propositions, and had already commenced negotiations, informally, for entertaining them, when it was suddenly flashed upon his mind that these "grievances and outrages" were his chief stock in trade for the acquisition of Cuba. To part with them for the paltry consideration of justice to our own citizens, and the commercial advantages likely to follow in the train of an amicable arrangement with Spain, would be mere mid-summer madness! It would be absolutely no better than throwing not one plank only, but a whole platform out of window; and then where could he take his stand before the Nominating Convention at Charleston in 1860? The President who never acts so promptly as when he is frightened by the dreadful parallels of a straightforward course, instantly darted around the nearest corner, and summoned Mr. SLIDELL to his aid.

To Mr. SLIDELL was intrusted the Senatorial promulgation of a new Presidential notion, and the "Thirty Million bill" in due course made its appearance. So delighted was Mr. SLIDELL with the comeliness of this bantling that he gave it out at first for his own. He hoped thus to secure for himself all the advantages at which the President had aimed in projecting the plan. We cannot suffer him thus to appropriate the Presidential honey,—thus to plow with the Presidential heifer. His original declaration that Mr. BUCHANAN knew nothing of the bill he was proposing must not deceive the Democracy, nor should the disingenuous qualification forced upon him by the President a few days afterwards, that "the President approved of the bill," be permitted to deprive Mr. BUCHANAN of his claims to the authorship of the most indecent and ridiculous proposition ever made by an AMERICAN Executive to an American Legislature. When History shall ask "Who killed the Buchanan Government?" Mr. SLIDELL must not step up like the sparrow, in the story of "Cock Robin," and arrogate the glory to himself. The case is a case of suicide, and of suicide extraordinary. For so bent was Mr. BUCHANAN on making away with himself, that he handled his scheme of colossal corruption in such a way as to bring it to the knowledge of the Spanish Government long before the too-famous Message of last December was given to the world. When Señor CALDERON COLLANTES, supported by the unanimous sentiment of the Spanish Cortes and the Spanish people, denounced any "proposition made, or to be made," for the purchase of Cuba as an insult to Spain, he knew in all the details precisely what measure it was that Mr. BUCHANAN meant to introduce for that end. So well aware was Mr. PRESTON, our Minister to Spain, of these facts, that he went out fully prepared to be received with a "reservation" in regard to Cuba and Cuban projects.

But the exposure and defeat of Mr. BUCHANAN'S policy is not the only result, we are glad to say, of all this Cuban discussion. It has put the whole question clearly before the nation, and it has evolved two propositions worthy the consideration of a respectable and powerful people. Mr. MASON, of Virginia, has shown Congress how to conciliate a firm and open declaration of large national policy, with all the proprieties of international law and courtesy. If it be really an object with the people of America to acquire possession of the island of Cuba, it is fair and lawful for us to state that object and to "await the course of events," within the becoming barriers of public law and recognized right.

Mr. WILSON, of Massachusetts, has taken a more practical step. He proposes annexation by conciliation, and conquest by commerce—such annexation and such conquest as have bound up the prosperity of Canada so closely with the prosperity of the United States, without abating one jot or tittle of Her Britannic Majesty's sovereignty over the empire won by WOLFE from MONTCALM. Reciprocity of interests is the immediately desirable aim to be striven for in our relations with Cuba. Such reciprocity will make the Island better worth the having if we are ever to have it; and make it, too, a source of wealth and assistance instead of a pest and a confusion to us, while it dallies still along the line of its "gravitation towards the Continent." The statesmanlike position of Mr. MASON and the businesslike attitude of Mr. WILSON may almost console us for the wretched wrigglings of Mr. BUCHANAN, and for the somewhat indecorous prostration of Mr. SLIDELL.

Official Corruption—The Recent Startling Disclosures.

The recent report of the Investigating Committee of the House of Representatives discloses a state of corruption among public men, in this country, which is replete with disgust to the most lukewarm patriot. It reveals a state of things which is bad enough at home, but which will tell against our people with tenfold rigor abroad. It shows what will be regarded as a picture of American morals, in colors the most hideous and the most revolting. It demonstrates the painful fact that in "the model Republic of the world," corruption of the most degraded kind pervades every branch of the public service, dictates the course of the Government, and finds a ready and not always tacit accomplice in the President himself. It charges and proves that the country is governed by politics more than by policy, and for the profit of political partisans rather than for the general good,—that the Executive and his Cabinet freely employ the public money to purchase friends and partisans,—and that for the gratification of a weak ambition, the President of the Republic descends to the arrangement of the details of bargain and sale of the meanest of the offices in his gift, for the meanest of party purposes.

That similar crimes were committed before the present Administration came into power, we fear is only too true. That previous impunity has only tended to aggravate the evil and more firmly establish this most wretched system of robbery and wrong at Washington, is only too obvious. The report of the Committee of Investigation, indeed, is an indictment such as can scarcely find a parallel in modern history, unless we seek it in the recent events in Hayti. SOULOUQUE, the Black Emperor, plundered his country for his own private emolument; Mr. BUCHANAN, the white President, consents to the plunder of his country for the emolument and advantage of his private friends. The negro residents of Hayti felt so keenly the disgrace attaching to such a system as SOULOUQUE indulged in, that they rose en masse and drove him from the Island. Here, happily, we have constitutional means of remedying all evils, if we cannot remedy their results to the national character. It remains to be seen whether those means will or will not be employed.

Many of our newspapers, and all our stump orators, are accustomed to rail, in terms unmeasured and with reproach unstinted, against the despotism of the world. We denounce it and repel it. We devoutly thank God in the face of all nations that we are not as other men; and we proclaim that all people, to be free and happy, must do as we do, and be as we are. And yet, there is no ruler in the Old World who would stoop to such paltry peculation as has just been revealed here. There is no Government in Europe that would condescend to share the hire of the laborer appointed for political purposes. There is no form of society between the British Isles and the Caucasus that would not turn with scorn from any public body guilty of such miserable national pocket-picking.

It is, indeed, a consolation to remember, in spite of the opinions which the late disclosures will induce persons abroad to form of us, that the great American heart is sound and honest, notwithstanding that the Government which at present represents the American people may be impure and corrupt. It is not so cheering to have to remember, also, that apathy and indifference as to the character and conduct of the Government are among the failings of Americans, and are the principal of the reasons why impunity has so long waited upon wrong in the conduct of public affairs. Still, we shall find ourselves mistaken if this culmination of political depravity and national humiliation be not sufficient to awaken public attention to the necessity of radical change. The country is evidently at a turning-point in its future history. If we are to go on always as the recent startling developments show that we have been going lately, it requires little sagacity to foresee that we must go downward. The danger lies not alone in the waste or robbery of the public money, but in the general demoralization towards which all this corruption and meanness must inevitably tend. If such a system be permitted to continue, the country can never achieve the greatness to which the genius, intelligence and enterprise of the people, if honestly directed, would entitle it. If here be no punishment for venality in high places there will be incessant encouragement to venality, because it is profitable in money and in power. The custom of the people hitherto has been to suffer themselves to be led madly into all the excesses of political quarrel for the elevation of a handful of men, who have employed their advancement for the attainment of objects alike injurious to the public welfare and inimical to the national credit.

We have no hope that either the President or those of his advisers who are implicated in the exposé will be impeached during the present session of Congress. Nor should the people permit themselves to look to Congress alone for the remedy so much needed. They must see to it themselves, and use the Ballot-box for the purification of the system of Government. Such a change should be made in the Constitution as would render the Cabinet, if not the President himself, directly responsible to Congress, and insure the instant withdrawal of those officers who disgrace the country with the trickery of the political huckster or the black mail practices of the bumbailiff. The question can scarcely be too seriously regarded. Are we to advance in honesty and credit, or to go back? Shall we permit our country and its institutions to be dragged into the mire of disrepute at home and abroad by the unfaithful servants whom we set in our high places?

The evil of political spoliation has now about reached as far a point of mischief and shamelessness as people are likely to sustain with patience. Shall this starting-point tend upward towards improvement, or further downwards to national humiliation and disgrace?

THE PRESIDENT'S VETO OF THE AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE GRANTS.—We publish the Message of the President vetoing the act of Congress making donations of the public lands to the several States for the establishment of Agricultural Colleges. The views which it sets forth, in a diffuse, inelegant and obscure style, strike us as sound, sensible and timely. His objections to the bill are just, and in vetoing it he has rendered a service to the country.

Aside from the very obvious consideration that the Federal treasury is not now in a condition which will justify large donations of any sort or for any purpose, the bill transcends the policy, if not the power, of the General Government. Agricultural Colleges have no more claim upon the national bounty than schools of any other character,—nor indeed so much, for they are avowedly for the benefit of a particular class. Until the Federal Government shall assume the duty of providing for education generally, and upon some adequate and definite system, we do not see how it can, with any propriety, make large grants either of lands or of money for schools of any specific or professional character.

It is very easy to see why such a bill should have passed Congress, aside from its merits. It is, nominally at least, for the benefit of the largest interest in the country:—and those members whose constituencies were largely composed of farmers, felt under an obligation to support a bill which professed to have been framed for their advantage. The greater credit is due to the President for having discarded these considerations, and acted upon his own convictions of public policy and right.

EXTENSION OF THE CENTRAL PARK.—We are surprised to hear from Albany that a remonstrance has been sent to the Legislature against the proposed extension of the Central Park, so as to include the high bluff which is now just outside its northern line. Public sentiment is almost unanimous in favor of that change. Indeed, we have never heard from any person who has examined the ground, the expression even of a doubt as to the eminent propriety and even necessity of the proposed extension.

The sole ground on which the remonstrance is based, is that of expense. The remonstrants are all men of wealth, and owners of property on the Park,—and they fear an increase of taxation if this change is made. They must be aware that the increase in the annual value of property in that part of the island, on account of the Park, has already been more than enough to pay the interest on its cost; and if they will consider the expense of opening and grading streets and making the other improvements which will be required if this bluff is not taken into the Park, they will easily discover that the change proposed will cost them very little, if anything at all.

The Legislature, we believe, is in possession of all the facts of the case, and is undoubtedly prepared to act intelligently upon it. We are confident that they will sadly disappoint public expectation here, if they fail to authorize the proposed extension of the limits of the Park.

THE REGISTRY BILL.—The Assembly is taking hold of the Registry measure with much apparent earnestness. Some days ago a caucus was held on the subject, and a Committee of Nine agreed upon to prepare a bill as free as practicable from objections. This is, perhaps, as good a mode as could be hit upon; and although the Republicans are not entirely unanimous, there can be little doubt that the measure will pass the Assembly, and probably during the present month. In the Senate there will be sixteen Republicans—when a Republican successor of Mr. SNOW shall have taken his seat—and two Americans—eighteen in all—who may be supposed favorable. If all these shall be present, and vote for a Registry, the bill will have one vote more than the number necessary to pass it.

Obituary.

DEATH OF MR. ROBERT WALSH.—Mr. ROBERT WALSH, formerly United States Consul-General at Paris, died in that city Feb. 7. Mr. WALSH was a native of Baltimore, born in 1784. His early education was received at the Catholic Colleges in Baltimore and Georgetown. His literary career began in 1809, when he published a "Letter on the Genius and Disposition of the French Government, including a view of the Taxation of the French Empire." Two years afterwards he established the American Review, and in 1821 began the publication of the Philadelphia National Gazette. During Mr. VAN BUREN'S Presidency Mr. WALSH was appointed American Consul to Paris, an office which he held until the accession of General TAYLOR'S Administration, when he was removed, and SAMUEL G. GOODRICH, Esq., was appointed as his successor. He, however, continued to reside in Paris, where he has been for a long time the correspondent of the Washington National Intelligencer, and of the New-York Journal of Commerce. In 1810 the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon him by Harvard College. He was a member of the Massachusetts Historical Society and of the American Philosophical Society, and a corresponding member of the Royal Spanish Academy of History.

Mr. Everett's Lecture on Franklin.

An invitation was sent to Mr. EVERETT some time ago, by prominent citizens, to repeat his lecture on FRANKLIN, recently delivered in Boston, in this City, to which he has returned the following reply:

BOSTON, Friday, Feb. 25, 1859.

GENTLEMEN: Your obliging communication, dated the 24 February, was transmitted to me a day or two since. I shall have much pleasure, agreeably to your request, and under the auspices of the Mercantile Library Association of New-York, in delivering my recently-prepared discourse on the subject of FRANKLIN, and the 9th of March will suit my convenience for that purpose.

I ought, perhaps, in accepting your kind invitation, to say, that I have not attempted in this discourse to portray the life and services of FRANKLIN. Reserving an effort of that kind for some future opportunity of greater leisure than it has been in my power at this time to command, and hoping, also, to find new materials for such a discussion in the lately recovered but not yet published papers of our renowned countryman, I have confined myself, on this occasion, to those circumstances connected with his early years which admit of a separate treatment, which are closely connected with the formation of his character, and thus serve as an appropriate introduction to his illustrious career.

I remain, gentlemen, with the highest respect, very truly yours, EDWARD EVERETT.

To Hon. CHARLES King, President of Columbia College; the Hon. DANIEL F. TIEMANN, Mayor of the City of New-York; and the other gentlemen uniting in the invitation.

The citizens of Philadelphia opposed to the proceedings at Harrisburg, on the subject of City Passenger Railways, and to the extension of privileges to companies now holding monopolies, have held a public meeting to remonstrate against the hasty and inconsiderate extension of the system.

AWAITING AT ALBANY.

Senate Island Incorporation—Gov. Bishop's First Veto—Progress upon New-York Measures and Some New Projects.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ALBANY, Monday, Feb. 28, 1859.

The bill known as the "Certain Punishment Bill"—providing for the trial of Staten Island murderies, was reached in Committee of the Whole this morning. Mr. JOHNSON, of Delaware, made a long and strong speech in its favor, reviewing the constitutional objections. Mr. CRAMER, of Richmond County, followed, overhauling the arguments that had been made by its friends. At 3 o'clock, a motion to report progress prevailed. In the House, a motion was made by Mr. TURNER to order the bill to its third reading. Mr. STRONG moved the previous question, but withdrew it on condition that Mr. TOWNSEND would renew it. Mr. SOMERINDYKE had an amendment he wanted to offer, and so should oppose sending it to a third reading—then renewed the call for the previous question, but withdrew it for Mr. STRONG to speak. Mr. STRONG said he had prepared a speech on the question, but was willing, in view of the little part of the Senate left, and the fact that this bill had been for more than a month on the files, to consign it to oblivion, and so renewed the call for the previous question, but withdrew it for Mr. TOWNSEND, who said he wanted an opportunity to show in Committee of the Whole that if this bill passed it would cover the House with infamy. Mr. STRONG called the gentleman to order. The Speaker rules that no gentleman could pass the previous question over from member to member, and that Mr. TOWNSEND was entitled to the floor. He moved, in consideration of the grief of some of his friends who wished to speak, withdrew the motion to order to a third reading. Mr. SOMERINDYKE appreciated the magnanimity of the withdrawal. The Speaker called the gentleman to order, and he proceeded orderly. Mr. STRONG moved to make the bill a special order for to-morrow at 11 o'clock, but this failing, it will probably come up again at 10½ o'clock as a general order.

The Registry bill was made a special order for Friday at 11 o'clock. Mr. JOHNSON introduced a bill, which was ordered to the first Committee of the Whole, to expedite the canvassing of votes at the special election for a Senator to the vacant seat of the late Senator SNOW. Mr. BRADWAY reported favorably the concurrent resolution of the Senate, amending the Constitution relative to the State Judiciary. Mr. TOWNSEND introduced a bill regulating the sale of intoxicating liquors and wines, and Mr. TURNER introduced one authorizing a Railroad through Grand-street, Williamsburg. Mr. MOSES, from the Judiciary, reported a bill providing for the appointment of a Commission of three by the Governor, who shall proceed to assess the damages done to the public property by the burning of Quarantine. Appeal is allowed to the Supreme Court; but its decision shall be final. I suppose this item will hardly gratify your Sepoy readers much.

The Governor sent in his first Veto message. The bill it vetoes is one out of several of like drift, which are in progress, and concern several counties in the State—among them Queens and Suffolk. The message was as follows:

STATE OF NEW-YORK, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, ALBANY, Feb. 28, 1859.

I return herewith, without my approval, the bill entitled "An act to extend the time for the collection of taxes in the city of Oswego and in the several towns in the County of Oswego, and in Dunkirk and Rotterdam, in the County of Schenectady."

The reasons which induce me to withhold my signature from this bill are indicated in the following passage from my Annual Message to the Legislature:

"It has been, for several years, the custom for certain counties to make application to the Legislature to extend the time for the collection of taxes, which applications have usually been granted. Being only partial, the operation is necessarily unequal, and ought to be discouraged and discontinued."

If there really exists any intrinsic difficulty in collecting the taxes within the time now prescribed by law, a general act, enlarging the time, should be passed, and an end be put to local and special legislation of this nature. I am not prepared to say that reasons do not exist for such a change. Should such a change, however, be made, the law should contain a stringent clause, forbidding the use of the money collected by the officers, and should provide for the more speedy payment of taxes into the treasury of the State. The time was, however, extended for a month throughout the State, except in a few cities, by a general law passed in 1857 and still in force, and strong reasons should exist to lead to another change so soon. I feel confident, however, that the difficulty in collecting taxes is in very many cases rather accidental than necessary. Experience has shown that applications for extension of time nearly always have their origin in the neglect of duty on the part of some of the officers charged with the imposition or collection of the taxes, or in an indisposition rather than an inability to pay within the time required. I can perceive no reason why officers should be encouraged in such neglect by the intervention of the Legislature. They should rather be left to answer to the people from whom they directly derive their powers. Under any circumstances, it is my deliberate intention, so far as is properly within my province, to hold every officer of every nature to a strict and careful compliance with the Constitution and the laws, without regard to the practice which may have hitherto prevailed, or to the temporary inconvenience which such a course may, perhaps, at first cause to individuals. I am fully satisfied that only by this course can regularity and economy be restored and maintained in our system of government.

The indisposition to pay taxes within the time required by law does not extend to the great mass of the community. Men in moderate circumstances do not, as a general thing, seek for or avail themselves of delay. They know when the taxes are due, and are prepared to pay them punctually. But those in more prosperous circumstances, who can, if it becomes necessary, pay at any time, frequently neglect or postpone payment to the last moment, and it is for their benefit, or for that of some town or county officer, that these applications are generally made in those cases in which they are not caused by the neglect of duty already referred to.

Entertaining these views I am compelled to return the bill for reconsideration to the Assembly, in which it originated. EDWIN D. MORGAN.

Immediately after reading this message, an Assembly bill, which the Senate had somewhat amended, came down for concurrence with the amendments. The concurrence got, after a long struggle, 65 votes—the House having the impression that though the bill extended the time for collecting taxes, the features objected to by the Governor in the other bill, had been removed from this.

In the Senate, Mr. ELY'S New-York Public Health Bill was ordered to a third reading. Mr. LAPAM introduced a general bill for the extension of time for collecting taxes. It extends the time to the first Monday in April, and requires payment into the State Treasury within thirty days after the receipt thereof. It was passed, and the Assembly's action on it is above noted.

The act amending the Peter Cooper Institute act had its third reading and passed. It exempts the Institute building from taxation. The contested seat question was made a special order for Monday evening next. The Inebriate Asylum bill giving to Dr. TURNER's pet $60,000, in installments, then came up. Mr. DIXON moved as an amendment to give, instead of any fixed sum, ten per cent. of all moneys received by County Treasurers for liquor licenses before the first Monday in July of each year. Mr. W. A. WHEELER wanted to make it 15 per cent., and the project was advocated by Mr. DIXON, Mr. MAYER and Mr. THOMAS, and opposed by Mr. FOSS and Mr. HUNTER as diminishing the fund appropriated for the support of the poor in counties, and as perpetuating the present wretched license system. Progress was reported on the bill.

It is a dull, nasty, heavy day. The air in the Assembly-chamber was thick and foul. In the Senate a better ventilation made it somewhat more tolerable. But out of doors it is warm, muddy, murky and oppressive. To-night we look for rain.

The horrible affair of SICKLES and KEY was reported at the Capitol early in the morning, and it received more attention than anything under debate in either House. Indeed little else was talked of.

GLAUCUS.

NEW-YORK LEGISLATURE.

Mr. ELY reported complete the bill relative to reorganizing the Health Department of New-York under medical officers.

The bill was ordered to a third reading.

The Senate only was in session this evening.

County of the time of holding their meeting. They are then to meet and take testimony and appraise the damages. Their report is to be published, and, within a certain time, any person interested may appeal from the award to the Supreme Court, the decision of which is to be final. The amount of the damages is to be a lien on Richmond County, and is to be collected forthwith by the Comptroller.

Mr. Mesnes also reported a bill to allow administrators on bail to apply to the Court the same as heirs, and to compel the finishing up of administrators' duties under the will.

The resolutions passed by the Senate, reorganizing the Judiciary of the State, were reported favorably by the House.

The Governor returned, with his veto, the bill to extend the time for the collection of taxes in certain towns in the State, on the ground that a special act for such a purpose was improper. He says that if there is any reason for an extension law it should apply to the whole State.

Mr. Tweedy introduced a bill to authorize the construction of a railroad in Grand-street and other streets, Brooklyn.

Mr. Tostevin introduced a bill giving the license power of New-York to the Mayor and Corporation.

On motion of Mr. C. S. Seymour the Registry law was made the special order for Friday at 11 A. M.

THE RAILWAY GUIDE

OF THE

UNITED STATES AND THE CANADAS.

RAILWAY TIME TABLES PUBLISHED OFFICIALLY, UNDER THE SUPERVISION OF THE RAILWAY COMPANIES.

In reference to the recognition of APPLETON'S RAILWAY GUIDE as the official organ of the Railway Companies, we present the following list of names of the Presidents which we have selected from a large number of signatures in our possession:

"We would recommend those Railway Companies throughout the United States and the Canadas, who have not done so, to recognize and support APPLETON'S RAILWAY GUIDE as their Official Organ, and that correct copies of Time Tables be forwarded to them when changes are made in time.

ERASTUS CORNING, President of the New-York Central Railroad.

J. EDGAR THOMPSON, President of the Pennsylvania Central Railroad.

SAM. SLOAN, President of the Hudson River Railroad.

S. H. FELTON, President of the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad.

WM. H. OSBORN, President of the Illinois Central Railroad.

HENRY C. LORD, President of the Cincinnati and Indianapolis Railroad.

E. J. BECK, President of the Terre Haute and Richmond Railroad.

J. W. BROOKS, President of the Michigan Central Railroad.

E. S. L'HOMMEDIEU, President of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton Railroad.

The circulation of

APPLETON'S ILLUSTRATED RAILWAY GUIDE

is much larger than that of all other works of the kind combined, and as a medium for general advertising throughout the United States and the Canadas, it is unsurpassed. There is scarcely a town, village or city throughout the country but that it reaches, thousands and tens of thousands are sold upon the various

RAILWAYS OF THE UNITED STATES AND CANADAS.

It contains interesting reading matter, nearly seventy-five Maps, a Time Indicator, illustrating by twenty-five lines, the difference of Time between New-York, London, (Eng.) San Francisco, California, Trinity Bay, Valentia Bay, and all the principal cities of the United States.

CONTENTS OF MARCH NUMBER.

XI.—A Gazetteer of the United States, arranged under the separate maps of railways, giving an account of the most important cities, villages, &c., through which the railways pass.

In reference to the accuracy of APPLETON'S GUIDE, the attention of the traveling community is called to the following extract from a letter to the Saturday Evening Gazette:

"Within the past six months business or pleasure has called me into one-half of the States of the Union and over several thousand miles of railroad; and I have never arrived at a depôt ten minutes late, nor lost a connection—thanks to my pocket companion, APPLETON'S RAILWAY GUIDE—a work corrected and published semi-monthly, which is a model of accuracy, and may be relied upon implicitly. A study of its contents has begulled many miles of their tediousness, while the information it imparts reflects the greatest credit on the publishers."

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

From the New-York Herald.

This admirable compilation is increasing so rapidly in circulation that in this respect it promises soon to outrival the English Bradshaw. In the care with which the tables are put together, and in the extent and variety of the information which it conveys, it however has no equal.

From the Baltimore American.

As the traveling season will soon commence, this comprehensive guide will now be called into requisition. Those who buy it once will never afterwards be without it.

From the Boston Journal.

We should as soon think of starting on our journey without a valise as to go on our journey without the latest edition of this useful and entertaining handbook.

Extract from the Musical Mary.

This is decidedly the best guide in the world—far ahead of Bradshaw's English work. It is illustrated by over sixty maps, and contains over two hundred pages. It is a work that should be placed in the hands of every man, woman and child in the United States.

From the American Railway Times.

This is a most admirably-arranged traveler's guide, and we cordially recommend it to the public. It is the most complete thing of the kind ever published in this or any other country.

From the Cincinnati Commercial.

Appleton's Railway Guide is, without exception, the most complete work of the kind ever published. Mr. G. F. Thomas, the original projector and compiler of the Guide, was for many years a resident of our city, and is well-known to many of our citizens as peculiarly competent for a work of this kind.

From Harpers' Weekly.

Appleton's Railway Guide, which makes its monthly appearance, has become as much of a necessity in America as Bradshaw is in England, and, in its pretensions, while the style puts to shame that dingy publication.

From the Cincinnati Times.

"Appleton's Railway and Steam Navigation Guide" is, without exception, the best Railway Guide ever published. It is not a mere collection of time-tables. Every road of note is represented by a map of the road, placed opposite their advertisement and time-table, which map, also, delineates the connecting lines. The Guide also contains interesting literary as well as railroad matter, which is changed every month. To travelers we consider this work indispensable. The information imparted is so plain that a child can easily comprehend it.

This is probably the cheapest book ever published. It contains nearly 300 pages, and is sold at the low price of 25 cents per copy. D. APPLETON & CO., Publishers,
Nos. 346 and 348 Broadway, New-York.

For sale by all the principal periodical and news agents, and at all the bookstores, and by all the boys who sell papers, &c., upon the cars throughout the United States and Canadas.

IMPORTANT TO NEWS AGENTS AND OTHERS.—In consequence of the great increasing demand for the Guide, the editions become exhausted in a few days. To prevent disappointment, dealers will please send their orders five days previous to the 1st and 15th of each month.

THE RED ROVER.

One crown octavo volume; over 600 pages; embossed cloth varnished, price $1.50; or uncut edges, plain cloth, for rebinding in extra styles, same price.

The Publishers are gratified as well as encouraged by the very flattering reception which their enterprise has already met with from the public and the Press. No former publication of equal merit and importance has ever had so large a sale in this country in so short a time.

In New-York City alone we have received

in a single month; and the large additions that are being made from day to day give reason to expect double that number before the appearance of the next volume.

From other cities, as well as from remote sections of the country, we have abundant evidence of the high esteem in which the writings of Cooper are held by his countrymen.

A CIRCULAR, containing extracts from notices of prominent journals and full particulars respecting the plan of publication, is now ready, and will be mailed to the address of any one requesting it.

LADY MORGAN'S DIARY

NOW READY.

One volume, 12mo. Cloth, $1.

Lady Morgan has addressed the following lines to The Athenæum, in reply to a reference to her age in the review of her recent "Diary." She is some 16 years old:

TO MY REVIEWER.

My life is not dated by years,
For Time has drawn lightly his plow,
And they say crows a narrow space appears
To reveal what I care will show.

Till the spirit is quenched, still a glow
Will fall o'er the dream of my days,
And brighten the horizon they flow
In the sunset of memory's rays.

For as long as we feel we are joy;
The heart sets all dates at defiance,
And forgetful of life's last alloy,
With Time makes a holy alliance.

Then talk not to me of "my age,"
I appeal from the phrase to the fact
That I'm told, in your own brilliant page,
I'm still young in fun, fancy and tact.

OFFICE OF THE UNITED STATES LIFE INSURANCE CO.,
No. 40 WALL-ST., NEW-YORK, Feb. 24, 1859.

To the Editors of the Long Book:

In your paper of the 23d inst. you furnish a statement of what we presume you have been informed is a correct view of a case pending between this Company and the alleged owner of a Life Insurance Policy, issued by it. As we conclude the Courts are competent to decide such cases, we only ask those interested not hastily to make up their minds upon a case not yet fully adjudicated. We shall yield, and good-humoredly, to the final decision of the Courts, the more especially as it is the very first case which our sense of duty has compelled us to litigate; and shall not be led into any newspaper controversy.

Yours respectfully,

LEONARD & JACKSON'S
"PATENT LIGHTS."
A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.
Having been creditably informed that persons have on one or more occasions endeavored to injure our business by false and false statements to the effect that the vault light which we manufacture and sell is an infringement of letters patent granted to Mr. Thaddeus Hyatt, we hereby notify those persons to desist from such defamatory statements, as we shall hold them personally responsible for damages.
Letters patent for the vault light which we are manufacturing, was granted June 29, 1858, and, should it be questioned, we are fully prepared to defend our rights in the premises, and to show that we are not infringing upon the rights of Mr. Hyatt or any one else.

HYATT'S PATENT LIGHTS.
A CARD HAVING BEEN ISSUED TO THE PUBLIC
By parties who frankly confess that they do not pay me for my invention, I avail myself of this opportunity to advertise the names of those who do. The following persons, only, are licensed under my patents in this City:
George R. Jackson & Co.
J. B. & W. W. Cornell & Co.
S. B. Althause & Co.
Ingalls & Case.
Theodore Hyatt.
The law is, that a person who purchases or uses a patented article is equally liable for infringement with the maker of it. The "makers" having fairly notified the "users" of their intention not to pay, the "users" have only themselves to blame if I collect my tariff of them—as I shall certainly do. THADDEUS HYATT.

BOONTON, PATENT MACHINE-MADE NUTS.—The subscribers are now manufacturing at their Works, Boonton, New-Jersey, WROUGHT IRON NUTS, upon R. H. COLE'S newly patented NUT MACHINES. In their manufacture the patented device of the "Double Punch," namely, two punches operating from opposite sides toward the centre of the Nut forces into the body of the Nut most of the Iron, which in all other processes is punched out; and also condenses the iron around the bolt hole, thus insuring the greatest strength in the Screw thread, and making, as they believe, a Nut superior to any made by hand, or the ordinary machine processes.
They invite all consumers of WROUGHT IRON NUTS to make trial of them, and will furnish samples and their price list on application. FULLER, LORD & CO.,

FATAL RAILROAD ACCIDENT.—A colored lad named ALEXANDER WASHINGTON, accompanied by several white boys, attempted to steal a ride on the New Jersey Railroad, yesterday afternoon, by getting on top of the cars of an outward-bound train. On arriving at the Hackensack Bridge, the train stopped on a side track to allow an inward-bound train to pass on there to single track at this point. The conductor of the train on which the boys were, perceiving them perched on top of the cars, called out to them to jump down, which they did, and just at this moment the inward-bound train came rushing along, and ran over the boys, killing one, whose name is unknown, and leaving the colored boy's head. The body of the unfortunate boy that was killed was taken to Jersey City, and an inquest will be held to-day. The colored boy was brought to the New-York Hospital, in this City, and it was found that he had sustained a compound fracture of the skull. The operation of trepanning was performed by Dr. QUEEN, yesterday afternoon, and the boy was living last night.

MEETING OF THE BOARD OF ENGINEERS AND FIREMEN.—The usual annual meeting of this Board took place last evening at Firemen's Hall—Hon. Abm. Hewitt in the Chair. The following candidates were nominated for Assistant Engineers of the Fire Department: J. A. Creighton, John Baulch, Elisha Kingsland, John Decker, Daniel Donovan, E. W. Jacobs, James F. Wenman, Wm. Sackett, Timothy L. West, Peter N. Cornell, Francis Clark, Stephen Mitchell, John Carpenter, John Feeny, Clark Vanderbilt, Theodore A. Keese, John S. Craft, James R. Mount, John Whitley, R. V. Mackey. And for the First and Second Districts: G. J. Rushe, John Brice, John Hamsmith and George McGrath. Thursday, the 31 of March, between 7 and 10 o'clock P. M., was fixed upon for the election, and Friday for counting the votes. The inspectors of Election are John Slowey, Foreman of Engine Company No. 19; George H. Lynch, Hose Company No. 35, and John McSweeney, Hook and Ladder No. 12.

THE AMERICAN INDUSTRIAL ASSOCIATION.—At the late meeting of the American Industrial Association, the Superintendent reported that 72 persons had been sent to the West. The Finance Committee reported that the receipts since the previous meeting were $721 25, and that the balance in the hands of the Treasurer is $160 46. The Corresponding Secretary reported that a large number of benefactories are sewing women, who are unable to compete with those having sewing-machines. In the opinion of the large dealers in clothing, the most effective charity would be to present the women with sewing-machines.

FIRES AND LICENSES.—The receipts at the Mayor's Office for licenses and fines last week amounted to $770 25. Monday, $170 25, the receipts for that day, was deposited in the City Treasury; Tuesday, $66 25; Wednesday, $105 25; Thursday, $94; Friday, $162, and Saturday, $230 50. The receipts Saturday were much larger than those of any other day of the week, because on that day the Fifth-avenue Railroad Company took out licenses for two two-horse railway cars, ($100,) and three one-horse cars ($75.) The total amount thus collected since Jan. 1 is $9,001 75, only $675 50 less than the receipts for the whole of last year amounted to.

SUPPOSED COLLECTOR DROWNED.—The body of an unknown man, apparently about 25 years of age, was found yesterday morning, floating at the stern of the steamer Catskill, lying at the foot of Harrison-street. An inquest was held, and no marks of violence being apparent on the body, a verdict of supposed accidental drowning was rendered. The deceased was stoutly built, a little over medium height, dark hair and whiskers, and dressed in black, and had the appearance of having been in the water about three months. On his person were an account book, several bills for collection, and some small silver change. The papers would indicate that he had been employed as collector by Messrs. HEARST and HUME, assignees of JOHN BECK & Co.

MR. EVERETT'S ADDRESS.—A letter received yesterday from the Hon. EDWARD EVERETT, says: "The cold with which I was suffering when I last wrote you, has wholly left my lungs, and I look forward with entire confidence to keeping my appointment with you for the 4th of March." The arrangements are completed for a grand celebration of the Seventieth Anniversary of the formation of the Government of the United States. The tickets for Mr. EVERETT's oration at the Academy of Music, are now for sale at all the bookstores.

PAVING HUDSON-STREET.—The Committee on Streets of the Board of Councilmen met yesterday afternoon. Alderman BRADY's resolution, directing that Hudson-street should be paved with Belgian pavement, came up for consideration. Numerous remonstrances from property holders were presented, protesting against the work being done, on the ground that taxes were too heavy already. No decided action was taken, but the opinions expressed favored the postponement of the work for the present. Several other unimportant papers came before the Committee.

THE FRENCH THEATRE.—The artists engaged by Messrs. WIDNOW and LA SAGE, for their French Theatre in this City, arrived on Saturday last by the Fulton. The Theatre will be opened on Tuesday, March 8. It has been quite restored and renewed in all respects, and promises to be one of the pleasantest places of public resort in the City.

COUNTERFEIT BILLS ON THE ROCKPORT BANK.—Several bills of the denomination of $5, on the Rockport Bank, Mass., were passed on shopkeepers last evening. A new feature on the bill was the printing of "A. HEZZLEWIG, Real Estate Agent, Hartford, Conn.," on the back of the bill, to give the impression that it must be genuine, having a business advertisement on the back.

REPUBLICAN GENERAL COMMITTEE.—The organization of this Committee was finally completed last evening by the election of the following officers, President—CHARLES A. PEABODY. Vice-Presidents—THOS. G. CLEMENTSHAW and THOMAS LITTLE. Treasurer—JAMES KELTY. Secretaries—GEORGE SPARROW and H. T. CLEVELAND. After the appointment of an Executive Committee they adjourned.

RESCUED FROM DROWNING.—JAMES WILSON, residing at No. 245 Elizabeth street, while in an intoxicated condition, walked into the river at the foot of Oliver-street, at 7½ o'clock last evening, and would have been drowned but for the exertions of Officer Reis of the Fourth Ward Police.

BOLD ROBBERY.—Early last evening two men in a butcher's wagon drove up to the front of the store of JAMESON HYATT, No. 210 Bowery, seized a roll of carpeting, threw it into the wagon and made good their escape. This is the second robbery of the kind in that vicinity within two weeks.

LARGE CONTRIBUTION.—At the close of the Annual Missionary services in St. Paul's M. E. Church in this City, on Sunday last, the congregation contributed $10,000 to the Missionary cause, in addition to a recent contribution of $2,500.

THE NEW-YORK HOSPITAL.—The weekly report of the New-York Hospital shows that on Feb. 25, there were in the Hospital, under surgical treatment: 126; under medical, 93; total, 219. Of the whole number 211 were males, and 38 females.

BAD FIVES ON THE WICKFORD BANK.—Five-dollar bills of the exploded Farmers' Bank of Wickford, R. I., altered to $8 on the Farmers' Bank of Lunenburg, N. Y., appeared last night. But few of them were passed.

FATAL EFFORT TO CONCEAL HER SHAME.—MARGARET HAYWARD, an Irish girl 19 years old, who has been for several months past engaged as domestic at No. 567 Broome-street, died on Sunday evening from the effects following an attempt to produce an abortion.

NORWICH AND WORCESTER LINE.—The steamer Connecticut having been put in complete order, will be placed on the line to Boston via the Norwich and Worcester route to-morrow, to run as before, in connection with the Commonwealth.

THE BLACK WARRIOR.—All further hope of saving the steamer has been abandoned, the sea having completely demolished the planking and bulwarks on the starboard side, and the hull being much broken up. A portion of the engine will be saved, if the weather continues moderate.

MONETARY AFFAIRS.

For Monday and Third Page.

[illegible]

The Weekly Averages of the Banks of the City of New-York, on Saturday, Feb. 26, 1859, present in the aggregate the following changes from the previous exhibit of Feb. 19:

Decrease in Loans	$1,610,412
Increase in Specie	125 216
Decrease in Circulation	29,886
Decrease in Undrawn Deposits	810,520

Including the Clearing-House operations of the week, which show the interexchanges between the Banks, and including also the Sub-Treasury statement of Saturday, the following is the general comparison with the previous exhibit, and also with the movement this time last season:

COMPARATIVE RECAPITULATION.

	Feb 27, 1858.	Feb 14, 1859.	Feb 19, 1859.
Capital	$65,600,000	$68,040,385	$68,040,385
Loans	103,760,127	125,866,093	127,476,495
Specie	21,656,694	26 470,171	26,344,955
Circulation	6,530,759	7,736,982	7,706,856
Gross Deposits	87,386 361	108,000,802	106,937,504
Exchanged	18,607,056	19,783,055	19,911,337
Undrawn	71,729,305	86,215,837	86,026,357
In Sub-Treasury	5,490,961	7,193,929	6,770,555

The further reduction of Loans, on the Bank Averages, to-day, is much larger than anticipated. The movement is most wholly involuntary, arising from the ease in the Money Market and the comparative scarcity of new bills. Few of the Banks are running down their lines as a matter of preference. The Specie Average goes up a little, although the general movement of the week to Europe and the Sub-Treasury indicated a loss of about half a million. The income by exports, as usual in the Spring season, begins to count in favor of the City. The present average is exclusive of the California arrival, $1,287,967. Part of the Deposit line has been lost in paying off maturing bills at Bank. The Statement, as a whole, is regarded on the Street this afternoon as further evidence of a cheap and quiet market for Money. The rates of to-day, both on call and for discounts, are the same as in our review of the past week. The standard drawers of Exchange are asking ¼ advance, and we quote on London 109¼@109¾ ⅌ cent. Not much business yet accomplished for Wednesday's steamer.

The Stock Market is strong and speculative to-day. The movement for the rise is more decided than for several weeks past. It had its first important impulse on Friday last, and this was succeeded by pretty confident purchases on Saturday, indicating at the close of the week a preponderating influence at the Board of Brokers in favor of higher prices. These signs held good at the early session this forenoon, New-York Central stock leading off with sales of about 6,000 shares, at a further advance of ¼@¾ ⅌ cent. In the Street, after the first adjournment, another advance of ¼ ⅌ cent. was paid, the certificates for delivery to-day being rather scarce, and several of the Street jobbers failing to meet their contracts. The highest price paid was 80¾ ⅌ cent., at which price, and at 80¾ ⅌ cent., further considerable sales were made at the Second Board. The closing price was 80¾, as against 79¾ on Saturday. The influence of this leading Stock was felt upon most of the Western shares, and upon Harlem Preferred and Hudson River. The additional rise in Rock Island was ¼ ⅌ cent.; Galena, ¾ ⅌ cent.; Michigan Central ¼ ⅌ cent.; Southern Preferred, 1¼ ⅌ cent.; Toledo, ¼; Harlem Preferred, ¾; and Hudson ¼ ⅌ cent. The entire sales of the day in New-York Central were not much under 10,000 shares, and of other stocks 15,000 or 16,000 shares. The advance in Panama, under a strong demand, was to 117½ ⅌ cent. at the close of the dealings. The advices by the mail of yesterday are to the effect that neither of the prospective rival routes to the Pacific are likely soon to interfere with the California trade over the Road, while the miscellaneous freight and specie traffic, exclusive of this trade, derived from Central America and the Southwest Coast, are constantly on the increase. A deputation of the Directors, Messrs. WM. WHITEWRIGHT, Jr., and WM. C. FELLOWS, have recently been over the property, and the former of these gentlemen has just returned to New-York, abundantly satisfied of the substantial condition and excellent order of the line of the Road, and of its capacity to double its present business, without adding materially to the expenses of operating it. The advance in the stock is somewhat accelerated by the circumstance that a considerable line short was recently sold on the Street on the calculation that the rivalry between the steamship lines might lead to the immediate reopening of a cheaper transit, via Nicaragua. This rivalry, on the contrary, must avail of the only practical route, via Panama, and so far as it tends to increase the travel to California, must increase the business of the Road. We do not understand that the Company now identify themselves with either of the California steamship lines, although the suspicion has been general that their sympathies are strongly with the Pacific Mail. The Pacific Mail shares advanced to-day to 78¼ ⅌ cent. The accounts by the last steamer, while partially confirming the belief that GARRISON, on the Pacific side, has united with VANDERBILT here to run an opposition, are counterbalanced by the prospects of a renewal of the mail contract at Washington in the course of the present week. It is not improbable that the arrangement of the new contract may involve or lead to another compromise with VANDERBILT and ROBERTS, whose confidential friends and brokers have not been sellers of the Mail Stock for some days past.

The strength of the market to-day was not confined to the speculative shares. The new Federal Loan improved ¼ ⅌ cent., and 1025 ⅌ cent. was bid, without inducing sellers. There was a further advance of 1 ⅌ cent. in Missouris, closing 86@86¼, and ¼ ⅌ cent. in Tennessees. In Railway Bonds, the unsecured or Convertible Bonds of the Erie advanced 2@2½ ⅌ cent., and Illinois Constructions were ½ ⅌ cent. higher. The Bonds of the New-York Central were firmer and scarce.

The holders of Racine City Bonds, Wisconsin, will find on another page of this paper a call for a meeting in Exchange-place, on Saturday next, at 3 o'clock.

The public are cautioned, by advertisement in another place, against purchasing certain numbers of Camden and Amboy Bonds, stolen from an office in Philadelphia.

The County Bank Once More.

The cause of the rejection of the New-York County Bank and the Grocers' Bank by the Clearing-house having been left unexplained, it is proper something should be said in order to show that their condition could not have been taken into account by those members of the Clearing-house who voted against the application for membership.

To prove the soundness of both institutions, it is sufficient to say that Mr. COOX, the Superintendent of the Bank Department, having given a thorough examination, pronounced their capitals sound, and gives his certificate. The Committee on Admissions, from the Clearing-house, examined the assets of the two Banks, and also pronounced the Banks in a sound condition, with a surplus.

Now, every person of ordinary discernment must see that such an event is well calculated to injure the credit of Banks so situated, and those who voted in the negative, if they gave themselves the trouble of a moment's reflection, must have known that they did an act which nothing could justify.

The Clearing-house was instituted for the purpose of facilitating exchanges among banks, and, if I am rightly informed, for that purpose alone; and what right it has to exclude banks which its own Committee admitted to be in a sound condition, I have yet to learn.

The truth seems to be, that a disposition exists among certain would-be great men in Wall-street to look down upon and oppress all the small banks; that is, banks having capital under $1,000,000. An association of presidents presiding over a million and upwards, (called in derision the House of Lords,) has, I am told, just been instituted, whose object, I suppose, is to take the monetary affairs of the City under their especial care, and to compel the paltry fellows who have only three, four, or eight hundred thousand under their charge, to do their bidding, and to ask favors, cap in hand, with all proper humility.

These individuals seem to fancy that a man's financial talent and knowledge are to be measured by the amount of the capital of his bank, and that, consequently, the eight millions' opinion upon any question is worth just forty times that of the unfortunate imbecile who rejoices in a power not greater than two hundred thousand.

In this respect they resemble the aristocratic portion of the English people, who, according to BULWER, thinks that no man with an income less than two thousand pounds a year, can have, or has the right to an opinion upon any subject.

The animus above alluded to, is not, I am happy to say, to be imputed to all the gentlemen composing this lordly institution, since some of them, it is reported, and those certainly of the largest calibre of intellect, look with contempt upon the ridiculous pretensions of their confrères. The remedy for this state of things is obviously in legislative action; an amendment of the banking law should be immediately called for, placing the Clearing-house under such regulations, that any and all banks in sound condition shall be admitted to its privileges. A further amendment would not be amiss requiring Presidents of banks banded together for financial purposes, to report all proceedings calculated to affect and have bearing upon the monetary condition of the country. The genius of our institutions is opposed to all secret societies whatever may be their object; and especially to those who wield for good or for evil, the greatest of powers, the power of money. Let us, therefore, have publicity.

In conclusion, I may add, that it would be worse than folly for the small banks, as they are termed, to submit to the overbearing conduct of the larger, since there is nothing to hinder their procuring law that will place all banks, great and small, upon a footing of perfect equality. FAIR PLAY.

We give place to the foregoing communication, additional to what has already been said of the recent movement in the Clearing-house, without desiring to be understood as indorsing the Legislative remedy suggested by this and other correspondents. We do not see that it is called for by the nature of the abuse, which is otherwise susceptible of correction. The Association in the Clearing-house is voluntary, and has never yet been in any way recognized by our Banking Law, and we trust never will be in the sense to give the establishment control over our banking movement. The particular conduct now complained of, and other nuisances growing out of the accidental and wholly factitious importance which has been given to a few men who cipher and gossip and mouse around the office assigned to the settlement of the daily exchanges between the Banks, whether as a regular or self-constituted management, might readily be removed by the majority of the Associated Banks in general meeting or at their annual election. The power of numbers is with the Banks under a million of Capital, who really have with them, in the sentiment that the Clearing-house is constantly perverted to mischief, a majority of the officers of the large Banks; so that the manly exercise of this power in modifying the standing rules, and in placing right thinking men on the Committees, is all that is required to bring the establishment back to its original and simple purpose.

While on the subject of admission to the Clearing House, we may as well say to our neighbor of the Journal of Commerce, that he mistakes as if he supposes that we advocate the rejection of the Bullion Bank, which we simply warned him will be blackballed, if the same spirit continues to obtain. The act would be arbitrary, but not more so than the refusal of the New-York County Bank, which he certainly seemed to sanction. We agree in believing that the confusion and inconvenience growing out of such intermeddling with the freedom of the business and interchanges of banking, we care not under what peculiar theory, would fall mainly upon the Banks already in the Clearing-house.
